BRITISH JOURNAL OF ACADEMIC LIBRARIANSHIP. , British Journal of Academic Librarianship Joint Funding Councils' Libraries Review Group,1994 Collaborations for Student Success Dallas Long,2019-08-14 Libraries are exploring new roles and new partnerships on college campuses in order to improve students experiences and enable learning outside the classroom But other than faculty members who are librarians potential partners The student affairs professionals are responsible for everything from residence halls to service learning to career exploration and make up one of the fastest growing groups in higher education they are the experts in student development and the student experience However librarians and student affairs professionals are largely unfamiliar with each other's roles in student learning. By using multiple focus groups, Long describes the experiences and perceptions of librarians and student affairs professionals at several four-year residential colleges and universities. He identifies ways librarians and student affairs professionals share common values and can approach partnerships successfully but also the barriers that result when these two groups don't fully understand each other's roles in student learning. This book is the perfect road map for librarians and student affairs professionals alike who are seeking partners for campus collaborations. Librarian as Communicator Helen Fallon, Graham Walton, 2019-05-17

As the information landscape evolves and takes shape using traditional and new platforms, it is the role of Academic Libraries to take the lead in communicating, developing, and informing these changes in timely and relevant ways. Experienced librarians and those new to the field seek out innovative and more effective ways to engage with users and stakeholders. This book provides a variety of communication strategies for different user groups, taking into account the changing information landscape and the application and implications of social media developments. A major driver in higher education is the change in the scholarly communication model, where initiatives such as Open Access Institutional Repositories and Data Management are challenging previous practice while offering new opportunities for leadership. These communication developments provide opportunities for academic librarians who need the insight and awareness to take these chances. Librarian as Communicator provides research-based explorations of the above topics, covering developing areas and also the communication skills that are needed for the academic library to have a continuing role in the 21st Century. It was originally published as a special issue of the journal New Review of Academic Librarianship. Academic Librarianship Marcy Simons, 2021-07-29

Academic Librarianship: Anchoring the Profession in Scholarship and Service is needed now as a response to how much has changed in academic librarianship as a profession, from the smallest academic libraries to large research libraries. Much has been written recently about the status of the profession of librarianship, i.e., whether or not it should still be considered a profession, are the same credentials still required, enough should things change dramatically in SLIS programs in response to the new normal, and what is the impact of hiring PhDs in disciplines outside of librarianship. Major topics covered include: State of the profession of librarianship today; Status of librarians; Tenure or not; Move away from faculty status in some more academic libraries; Contributions to the profession; scholarship; What is produced; How are librarians conducting research; Where is it taking place; who is producing scholarship; Why; Trends; Contribution to the profession; service and professional associations; LIS Education; Tomorrow: what are the implications for the future of our profession. Author Marcy Simons explores the history, current status, and future of the profession of academic librarianship. She clearly demonstrates the need for a shared understanding of how we will work together in order to continue our transformation. There's Another Way to Do It Felix T. Chu, 2005-09-14

Academic Librarianship, Past, Present, and Future David Kaser, 1989 British Journal of Academic Librarianship, Volume 9, Numbers 1/2, 1994, 1994 Meeting the Challenge of Teaching Information Literacy Michelle Reale, 2020-07-23 Reale s book is a valuable springboard for reflection that will help academic librarians understand the complexity of the challenges they face and then forge a path forward Positioning the Academic Library within the University Leo Appleton, 2021-05-13 Academic libraries are facing uncertain times The international higher education environment is very volatile and academic libraries and librarians can play a major role in helping to strategically position their parent institution within it In doing so there needs to be clarity as to what the position of the academic library is with regard to the role and function it has within the university and how library leadership can have pan institutional influence and impact There are several ways in which the academic library can position itself and this collection demonstrates many of these Strategic alignment with the university and its mission is a fundamental part of successful positioning as is being flexible adaptable and responsive to changing needs requirements and expectations Developments in research support and scholarly communications as well as super convergences with other academic support departments are examples of such responsiveness These topics along with other emerging themes such as library functions and institutional partnerships and collaborations are all discussed in the book and provide the reader with a rich variety of reflections and case studies on how academic libraries from across the globe have addressed their position within their institution This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal New Review of Academic Librarianship Academic Librarianship by Design
