Mndot Road Design Manual:

Facilities Development Manual Wisconsin. Department of Transportation, 1979 Design of Turn Lane Guidelines Howard Preston, Nicole Farrington, Michael Elder, Minnesota. Department of Transportation. Research Services Section, CH2M HILL (Firm), 2010 The guidance in MnDOT's Road Design Manual relative to the design of turn lanes is at least 35 years old and is reflective of a time when vehicle speed and volume were lower than they are today In response to these current conditions some designers have been providing longer turn lanes However this approach has resulted in inconsistent designs across MnDOT's system In response to concerns about the dated guidance in the Road Design Manual the inconsistent treatment across the system and the lack of a documented design process MnDOT developed and documented a new turn lane design process The suggested design process is based on the notion that turn lanes should be designed to be long enough to accommodate deceleration from the prevailing highway speeds plus the storage needed for left or right turning vehicles The new guidance provides a check list for designers that have links to look up tables for deceleration based on speed storage based on volume of turning vehicles and type of intersection control and adjustments for grades and the fraction of heavy vehicles These guidelines provide a resource for designers that will allow greater consistency between the length of turn lanes and traffic and roadway characteristics Bicycle Facility Design Manual, 2020 MnDOT's Bicycle Facility Design Manual is a resource for MnDOT planners and designers to plan for and implement context appropriate bicycle facilities within MnDOT right of way The 2020 Minnesota Bicycle Facility Design Manual supersedes the 2007 Minnesota Bikeway Facility Design Manual This manual provides the information necessary to develop safe consistent and predictable bicycle facilities along MnDOT's trunk highway system Providing connected networks of comfortable and safe bicycle facilities is an important factor to support and increase the use of bicycling for transportation The manual was developed based on national design standards and accepted industry practices in particular the American Association of Highway Transportation Officials Guide for the Development of Bicycle Facilities fourth edition and forthcoming fifth edition The manual should be used in conjunction with the current versions of the MnDOT Road Design Manual and the Minnesota Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices The manual is not intended as a legal standard and all design guidance should be considered with engineering judgment Publication website Design Exception Practices John Michael Mason, Kevin M. Mahoney, National Cooperative Highway Research Program, 2003 This report describes the range of design exception practices among state transportation agencies STAs and discusses the problems and suggested improvements based on the experience of state agency personnel All STAs are required to comply with the same federal regulation pertaining to design exceptions However the number of design exceptions the circumstances under which they are prepared and the methods employed vary considerably with many factors contributing to this wide range of practice This synthesis characterizes 1 conditions that require a design exception 2 data collection and analysis techniques and 3 internal

STA and external rules The report also describes benefits and problems experienced by STAs and identifies suggestions for improving and streamlining the design exception process In addition the innovative practices of two states New Jersey and Wisconsin are identified and discussed
