

Lab: Interpreting Fossil Evidence

Background: Like all science, biology is a process of inquiry. Science is a human process of trying to understand the world around us. There is no one method used by all scientists, but all scientific inquiry is based on the same principles. Scientific thinking is based on both curiosity and skepticism. Skepticism is the use of critical and logical thinking to evaluate results and conclusions. Scientific inquiry also requires evidence. One of the most important points of science is that scientific evidence may support or even overturn long-standing ideas.

In the following activity, you and the members of your team will play the roles of paleontologists working in Montana's famous fossil fields. You will simulate the process of uncovering the fossil remains of an ancient organism and work together to hypothesize the type of animal you have discovered during several days of "digging".

Procedure: Follow the instructions below. Obtain an envelope from your teacher and form a group of 2 - 4 students. (Make sure you only remove the number of fossils indicated at each step and do not look at the others in the envelope.)

One clear crisp afternoon in October, you find four well preserved and complete fossils.

Open envelope and randomly remove 4 fossils.

Day 1: That night in camp, after dinner, around a Coleman lantern, you and your colleagues begin to assemble the 4 bones you found earlier. Since the bones were all found together in an undisturbed layer, you assume that they are all from the same animal. You spend the rest of the evening trying different arrangements of the bones in hopes of identifying the animal before you get tired.

Take 5 minutes to assemble the bones and make notes in your data table #1. What kind of animal do you think this is?

Day 2: You wake up to a beautiful Montana morning and you hurry back out to the dig site. The rock layers that hold your fossils are very hard and only give up three more specimens. As the day ends you make your way back to camp for another try at assembling the mystery animal.

Open envelope and remove 3 more fossils.

Take 5 minutes to assemble all 7 bones and make notes in data table #2. What kind of animal do you think this is now?

Day 3: The next morning is cold. You can tell that winter is just around the corner and you know that this will be the last day of the digging season, and
