

Foundation of Jamestown Essay

Jamestown, Virginia was founded in 1607 as the first Virginia Colony settlement. It was the capital of Virginia until 1699 when Williamsburg was made the capital. It has a rich history as a fort and it is a tourism site that has a number of standing reminders of its rich history. This paper seeks to delve into the foundation of Jamestown in 1607.

Jamestown hosted the first permanent English settler who came to the Americas. According to William Kelso, it was the cradle of the British Empire. Jamestown was first known as James Fort when the Virginia Company of London set it up. At the time of the arrival of the Company, the settlement, located in the then Tsenacommacah country was administered by the Paspahegh tribe of the Powhatan Confederacy. The natives welcomed the colonists and even gave them crucial provisions. During the Starving Time, 1609-1610, mortality led to the perishing of over 80% of the colonists due to starvation and disease. The annihilation of the tribe happened in 3 years of warfare due to deteriorated relations with the newcomers.

The establishment of the Virginia Colony was done in the 1606 after the expedition commissioned by the Virginia Company of London. Three ships were sent for the expedition. They included Godspeed, Discovery and Susan Constant. The ships stopped for a while at Puerto Rico in order to increase the supply. In 1607, the expedition ships reached the Chesapeake Bay. Only about 100 people managed to reach the destination, Virginia. Along the way, some of the passengers of the crew died. The first ships that went for the expedition only contained men and boys and not women. Their arrival at the Chesapeake Bay marked the new name of the places such as the Northern capes of Virginia that were named after their kings heirs. Some of these places include; Cape Henry, for the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry Fredrick.

In addition the arrival of the first ships in Virginia also marked the opening of the Virginia Company that was previously under sealed order. The opening of the company named Captain John Smith as one of the governing council members. Captain John was a prisoner and was to be hanged. However, he was released by Captain Newport after the opening of the orders. The content of the orders included; directing the expedition to safer places where they could not be attacked by their enemies. The order further directed the expedition to seek an inland settlement which also was aimed at protecting them from the enemies.

With the order to seek inland settlement, they reached Chesapeake Bay. Some of them proceeded to seek settlement along James River. Those who found settlement along the James River renamed the place as Jamestown in memory of their first king, King James I.

Jamestown became a settlement place for the colonist because of its strategic position as per the order, which directed them to seek a place safer from enemy attack. Jamestown Island became the best place hence chosen by the colonists.

Some of the features of the island that made it more suitable to be selected by the colonist include; the island was situated at a high place where it became more suitable for better visibility. They could obtain better visual of their enemies approaching. Secondly, the water around James River was deep
