Strategies are proposed to help readers evaluate content, context and sources and ultimately build a foundation for carrying out their own online open source investigations. The author brings together theories and best practices from a broad range of literature, including modern Scandinavian research on the concept of source criticism, journalism and technology studies, advanced forensic verification research and literature designed for practitioners, including blogs and industry publications. Evaluating Digital Sources in

Just the Facts David T.Z. Mindich, 1998-11-01 A superb history of journalism's most respected tenet: objectivity and the challenges of achieving it in today's world. Christian Science Monitor. If American journalism were a religion as it has been called, then its supreme deity would be objectivity. The high priests of the profession worship the concept while the iconoclasts of advocacy journalism, new journalism, and cyberjournalism consider objectivity a golden calf. Meanwhile, a groundswell of tabloids and talk shows and the increasing infringement of market concerns make a renewed discussion of the validity, possibility, and aim of objectivity a crucial pursuit. Despite its position as the orbital sun of journalistic ethics, objectivity until now has had no historian. David T. Z. Mindich reaches back to the nineteenth century to recover the lost history and meaning of this central tenet of American journalism. His book draws on high-profile cases showing the degree to which journalism and its evolving commitment to objectivity altered and in some cases limited the public's understanding of events and issues. Mindich devotes each chapter to a particular component of this ethic: detachment, nonpartisanship, the inverted pyramid style, facticity, and balance. Through this combination of history and cultural criticism, he provides a profound meditation on the structure, promise, and limits of objectivity in the age of digital media. There is a growing unhappiness about the direction of news coverage. Readers and viewers want objectivity back. The first step toward doing that is to understand where objective journalism came from in the first place. Just the Facts is a good place to begin. The Washington Monthly

American Journalism W. David Sloan, Lisa Mullikin Parcell, 2014-01-10 News consumers made cynical by sensationalist banners. AMERICA STRIKES BACK

THE TERROR OF ANTHRAX and lurid leads might be surprised to learn that in 1690 the newspaper Publick Occurrences gossiped about the sexual indiscretions of French royalty or seasoned the story of missing children by adding that barbarous Indians were lurking about before the disappearance. Surprising too might be the media's steady adherence to if continual tugging at its philosophical and ethical moorings. These 39 essays written and edited by the nation's leading professors of journalism cover the theory and practice of print radio and TV news reporting. Politics and partisanship, press and the government, gender and the press corps, presidential coverage, war reportage, technology and news gathering, sensationalism: each subject is treated individually. Appropriate for interested lay persons, students, professors, and reporters, instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here.

Teaching Mass Communication Michael D. Murray, Anthony J. Ferri, 1992-02-24. This unique volume brings together original essays by well-known mass communication experts, master teachers who provide practical information on teaching the communication and journalism courses in which they specialize. The authors make recommendations for practical, applied, theoretical, and advanced courses representing every area of the mass communications curriculum. Its contributors include eminent specialists such as Maurine H. Beasley, who offers advice to teachers of media history; Dan Nimmo, political communication; Roy L. Moore, media law; Jay Black, media ethics; and John De Mott, media management. Chapter authors suggest course outlines, teaching strategies, and methods of testing and provide reviews of current texts and supplementary materials such as films and other audio-visual aids. Chapter topics in part I, The Introductory Course, include The Beginning Course in Mass Communication and introductory courses to broadcasting, public relations, the film course, and internship programs. Part II, Applied Coursework, includes chapters on writing news for print and broadcast, reporting, advertising, campaigns, audio and video production, and teaching research methods. Part III, which deals with advanced coursework, includes chapters on courses in mass communication, law, mass media management and history, mass media and politics, media criticism, and media ethics. Teaching Mass Communication will prove vitally important to faculty with new preparations for mass communication courses, including senior faculty keeping up with changes, media professionals, and new faculty preparing their teaching assignments.
