

1. Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of elderly people. The study was conducted in a community center in Tehran, Iran. The participants were 30 elderly people (mean age = 72.5 years) who were randomly divided into two groups: a control group (n = 15) and an intervention group (n = 15). The intervention group received a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not receive any training. The physical health of the participants was measured using a series of tests, including a 6-minute walk test, a 30-second chair stand test, and a handgrip strength test. The psychological health of the participants was measured using a series of questionnaires, including the Geriatric Depression Scale (GDS), the Geriatric Anxiety Inventory (GAI), and the Geriatric Life Satisfaction Scale (GLSS). The results of the study showed that the intervention group had significantly higher scores on all physical and psychological health measures compared to the control group at the end of the 12-week training program. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical and psychological health of elderly people.
