This book draws on a unique theoretical framework informed by clinical case studies Fanonian and Lacanian psychoanalysis and decolonial feminism to examine the concept of adornment in African cultures The book discusses the construction of aesthetic feminine ideals and the evolution of such ideals within the history of colonization decolonization and globalization Through the analysis of adornments including accessories hairstyle clothes and fabric the author demonstrates how they can reflect social status and also addresses its symbolic function in rituals At the level of the individual it draws on clinical case studies to examine the Lacanian theory of adornment and masquerade of femininity and the extent to which this echoes ambivalent attitudes towards women in society at large In doing so it provides a nuanced analysis which reveals how body adornment can be a paradoxical demonstration of both strength and weakness Building on the author's previous work in this area this book offers an important contribution to current debates in psychoanalysis cultural studies critical race theory and decolonial feminism Feminizing the Fetish Emily Apter, 2018-03-15 Shoes gloves umbrellas cigars that are not just objects the topic of fetishism seems both bizarre and inevitable In this venturesome and provocative book Emily Apter offers a fresh account of the complex relationship between representation and sexual obsession in turn of the century French culture Analyzing works by authors in the naturalist and realist traditions as well as making use of documents from a contemporary medical archive she considers fetishism as a cultural artifact and as a subgenre of realist fiction Apter traces the web of connections among fin de siècle representations of perversion the fiction of pathology and the literary case history She explores in particular the theme of female fetishism in the context of the feminine culture of mourning collecting and dressing
