Esoteric Lacan Philipp Valentini, Mahdi Tourage, 2019-10-18 Jacques Lacan was fascinated with forms of the religious throughout his life from monotheism which shaped his account of the signifier to modern occultism as he was well acquainted with the writings of figures such as Oskar Goldberg and Ren Gu non Lacan also repeatedly turned to non European religiosities to test the limits of psychoanalytic theory In his yearly seminars he engaged with traditions such as Kabbalah and Taoism going beyond the Western Christian capitalist and postcolonial setting of the French university to search for a possible outside to psychoanalysis But such a quest ultimately recapitulates Lacan's constant awareness of the desire for a new master and the still open question regarding the names and meanings that this desire may yield This anthology of eleven essays which travel from gnosticism to sufism from afro pessimism to post 68 ex Maoist apocalypticism investigates these unresolved threads that Lacan left behind Beneath the exoteric psychoanalytic apparatus of Lacan's thought there is an esoteric Lacan who remains unexplored

Psychoanalytical neuroscience: Exploring psychoanalytic concepts with neuroscientific methods Nikolai Axmacher, Henrik Kessler, Gerd Thomas Waldhauser, 2015-01-09 Sigmund Freud was a trained neuroanatomist and wrote his first psychoanalytical theory in neuroscientific terms Throughout his life he maintained the belief that at some distant day in the future all psychoanalytic processes could be tied to a neural basis We must recollect that all of our provisional ideas in psychology will presumably one day be based on an organic substructure Freud 1914 On Narcissism An Introduction Fundamental Freudian concepts reveal their foundation in the physiological science of his time most importantly among them the concept of libidinous energy and the homeostatic principle of constancy However the subsequent history of psychoanalysis and neuroscience was mainly characterized by mutual ignorance or even opposition many scientists accused psychoanalytic viewpoints not to be scientifically testable and many psychoanalysts claimed that their theories did not need empirical support outside of the therapeutic situation On this historical background it may appear surprising that the recent years have seen an increasing interest in re connecting psychoanalysis and neuroscience in various ways By studying psychodynamic consequences of brain lesions in neurological patients by investigating how psychoanalytic therapy affects brain structure and function or even by operationalizing psychoanalytic concepts in well controlled experiments and exploring their neural correlates These empirical studies are accompanied by theoretical work on the philosophical status of the neuropsychanalytic endeavour In this volume we attempt to provide a state of the art overview of this new exciting field All types of submissions are welcome including research in patient populations healthy human participants and animals review articles on some empirical or theoretical aspect and of course also critical accounts of the new field Despite this welcome variability we would like to suggest that all contributions attempt to address one or both of two main questions which should motivate the connection between psychoanalysis and neuroscience and that in our opinion still remain exigent First from the neuroscientific side why should researchers in the neurosciences address psychoanalytic ideas and what is or will be the impact of this connection on current neuroscientific theories Second from the psychoanalytic side why should psychoanalysts care about neuroscientific studies and how can current psychoanalytical theory and practice benefit from their results Of course contributors are free to provide a critical viewpoint on these two questions as well

Lacan a lu Marx assiduellement y compris et d'abord Le capital à l'âge de 20 ans Dans ses écrits comme dans son Séminaire il rend hommage à celui qu'il considère comme l'inventeur avant Freud du symptôme Il le critique toutefois d'avoir réduit sa formidable découverte de la plus-value à une réalité comptable et de ne pas avoir tenté en mesure de l'en saisir le ressort subjectif savoir la soif d'un plus de jouir Dans ce livre Pierre Bruno non seulement recense tous les non-sens de Lacan critique ou passeur de Marx selon les cas mais il met aussi à l'épreuve les catégories de Lacan celle de division du sujet celle de discours capitaliste celle de symptôme sinthome qui ont tenté en partie forgées à partir de cette lecture de Marx Au moyen de celles-là l'auteur analyse deux figures couplées de la scission du sujet Docteur Jekyll et Mister Hyde dans le roman de Stevenson Jeanne Dark et Maïa dans la pièce de Brecht Sainte Jeanne des abattoirs et il examine les positions de Althusser de Deleuze et Guattari et de Žižek sur les relations entre Lacan Marx et le capitalisme Pierre Bruno déploie ensuite une présentation minutieuse de l'analyse par Lacan du discours capitaliste en tant qu'il déroge aux quatre discours initialement théorisés par lui Enfin il reprend de Marx Freud et de Freud Lacan la question axiale du symptôme la clé de la psychanalyse n'est pas dans son radicalisation mais dans une transformation qui le délesterait de son impact pathologique
