puisque je passais par là...

A painting of a tree with a split canopy, one side in warm autumn colors and the other in cool winter colors, standing in a body of water. The tree is positioned in the center, with its roots visible in the water. The left side of the canopy is painted in vibrant autumn colors like orange, red, and yellow, while the right side is in cool winter colors like blue, white, and grey. The background shows a horizon line with a sky transitioning from warm colors on the left to cool colors on the right. The water reflects the colors of the sky and the tree.
