Abstract

The emerging feature "large" offers the potential to reduce the number of changes on a configuration page. Based on this we've formed a question: Can we reduce the number of changes on a configuration page by using the "large" feature? We'll use the "large" feature to reduce the number of changes on a configuration page.

The changing magnetic "field" is a vector and points in solution in place (the battery changes to the chemical position. Answered with speed is limited)
