 University of Applied Sciences Giessen course International Marketing language English abstract From polis to metropolis from ancient settlements to the urban society The situation of German cities undergoes deep changes An increasing pressure on their fundamentals influences the cities in their structures Caused by factors like globalization political amendment shifts in the society etc the city is losing its basic functions The times of being a central marketplace or a melting pot for the population are gone Today's society is more critical demanding and mobile When a city does not meet the expectations of its citizens and customers they will probably look for another place to satisfy their needs Even the industries lay a claim on their business location If their demand for infrastructure low taxes well trained employees etc does not meet the requirements they will probably relocate The competition between business locations and market places increases Furthermore this accelerating competition hits the cities in times of low financial resources and declining receipts The public administration has to consider new concepts and different ways to meet the competition Annual Editions: Marketing
