Oil, Politics and Violence Max Siollun,2009 An insider traces the details of hope and ambition gone wrong in the Giant of Africa Nigeria Africa s most populous country When it gained independence from Britain in 1960 hopes were high that with mineral wealth and over 140 million people the most educated workforce in Africa Nigeria would become Africa s first superpower and a stabilizing democratic influence in the region However these lofty hopes were soon dashed and the country lumbered from crisis to crisis with the democratic government eventually being overthrown in a violent military coup in January 1966 From 1966 until 1999 the army held onto power almost uninterrupted under a succession of increasingly authoritarian military governments and army coups Military coups and military rule which began as an emergency aberration became a seemingly permanent feature of Nigerian politics The author names names and explores how British influence aggravated indigenous rivalries He shows how various factions in the military were able to hold onto power and resist civil and international pressure for democratic governance by exploiting the country s oil wealth and ethnic divisions to its advantage Publisher s description Bonham and Cottonwood Pipelines and Molina Powerplants, Constructed 1959-1963 United States.
