In Part One the authors examine the destructiveness and cost of modern nuclear arsenals and offer both normative and systemic explanations      Eurasia's Maritime Rise and Global Security Geoffrey F. Gresh, 2018-04-04 This book explores Eurasia's growing embrace of its maritime geography from the Indian Ocean to Pacific Asia and the Arctic. In an age of climate change the melting of the Arctic will transform Eurasia's importance in addition to influencing the political economic and military dynamics across Eurasia's main maritime regions. These emerging shifts have already begun to alter maritime trade and investment patterns and thus the global political economy. It also creates a rising threat to the current status quo of world order that has long been dominated by the Atlantic World. This edited volume showcases some of the world's leading experts and examines Eurasia from a saltwater perspective analyzing its main maritime spaces in a threefold manner as avenue as arena as source to show the significance of this geostrategic change and why it matters for the future of the world's oceans      The Palgrave Encyclopedia of Global Security Studies, 2023-02-15 This encyclopedia provides an authoritative guide intended for students of all levels of studies offering multidisciplinary insight and analysis of over 500 headwords covering the main concepts of Security and Non traditional Security and their relation to other scholarly fields and aspects of real world issues in the contemporary geopolitical world

Milner, Dustin Tingley, 2015-09-15 How U.S. domestic politics shapes the nation's foreign policy. When engaging with other countries the U.S. government has a number of different policy instruments at its disposal including foreign aid international trade and the use of military force. But what determines which policies are chosen? Does the United States rely too much on the use of military power and coercion in its foreign policies? Sailing the Water's Edge focuses on how domestic U.S. politics in particular the interactions between the president Congress interest groups bureaucratic institutions and the public have influenced foreign policy choices since World War II and shows why presidents have more control over some policy instruments than others Presidential power matters and it varies systematically across policy instruments Helen Milner and Dustin Tingley consider how Congress and interest groups have substantial material interests in and ideological divisions around certain issues and that these factors constrain presidents from applying specific tools As a result presidents select instruments that they have more control over such as use of the military This militarization of U S foreign policy raises concerns about the nature of American engagement substitution among policy tools and the future of U S foreign policy Milner and Tingley explore whether American foreign policy will remain guided by a grand strategy of liberal internationalism what affects American foreign policy successes and failures and the role of U S intelligence collection in shaping foreign policy The authors support their arguments with rigorous theorizing quantitative analysis and focused case studies such as U S foreign policy in Sub Saharan Africa across two presidential administrations Sailing the Water's Edge examines the importance of domestic political coalitions and institutions on the formation of American foreign policy
