La Scientifisation Du Travail Social

Tony Andréani, Hélène Desbrousses

La Scientification Du Travail Social:

La scientification du travail social Stéphane Rullac, 2014 Le travail social ne fait pas l'objet d'une discipline en France. En effet, l'enseignement de ce secteur d'intervention qui regroupe plus d'un million de professionnels est principalement dispensé dans des établissements professionnels qui ne sont pas intégrés aux cadres académiques universitaires ou grandes écoles. Exceptionnelle à l'échelle mondiale, cette spécificité française a généré entre 2012 et 2014 une conférence de consensus organisée par le Conservatoire national des arts et métiers de Paris CNAM et l'Union nationale des associations de formation et de recherche en intervention sociale UNAFORIS. Ce processus de scientification d'une intensité inédite a suscité une importante activité de recherche dans les écoles professionnelles qui pose la question de la reconnaissance scientifique du travail social. Prenant appui sur le rapport du jury de cette conférence qui plaide notamment pour un effacement de la référence ancienne à la recherche en travail social et pour l'inscription de ce corpus dans un cadre disciplinaire, cet ouvrage adopte une démarche à la fois historique et projective mais aussi institutionnelle et méthodologique qui vise soumettre les piliers potentiels d'une scientification du travail social à la rigueur d'un questionnement scientifique.
