interwar years 1918-1939 this collection explores women's art in a variety of mediums including design print illustration murals poster art costume design film sculpture and painting These essays place a central concern on the history and theory of art and gender and have a coherent focus on women's role in the agency and mediation of artistic production between the wars

France Timothy Baycroft, 2008-08-29 Examines the nation building process of continual re-creation and re-invention of more than two hundred years of the history of France It explores the complex task of creating unity while reconciling regional religious and cultural diversity in a nation Divided into three sections it covers French history experience and identity and seeks to integrate conventional political history with insight into nation building Themes such as social conflict civil war and revolution identity and difference gender colonialism and decolonization religion material and popular culture and the devastation of war are examined in light of the evolution and continual reinvention of France This new study will be of interest not only to students of modern and contemporary France but also to those who want to understand the ways in which national identities are created and evolve within modern society

The Uncertain Foundation Andrew Knapp, 2007-06-27 France's liberation was expected to trigger a decisive break both with the Vichy regime and with the pre-war Third Republic What happened over three crucial years 1944-47 was an untidy patchwork of unplanned continuities and false starts along with fresh departures that defined France's future for the next half century Prepared by an international team of specialists The Uncertain Foundation analyses a complex process of regime change economic renewal social transformation and adjustment to a fast evolving world

French Masculinities Christopher E. Forth, Bertrand Taithe, 2007-07-11 French Masculinities makes a valuable contribution to gender studies by presenting for the first time a comprehensive and critical overview of ideas of how virility has been imagined in France from the Eighteenth century to the present Incorporating insights of cultural and social historians as well as specialists in film and literature this collection approaches masculinities in a complex and interdisciplinary manner that will appeal to a wide range of readers

Writing Contemporary History Robert Gildea, Anne Simonin, 2008-07-25 Writing Contemporary History brings together some of the world's most pre-eminent historians to discuss the core issues confronting students of contemporary history today Tackling ten key questions of current historiographical debate each chapter sets in parallel and in opposition the contributions of two scholars Questions include Does gender history have a future When does colonial history end What is cultural history now about This volume takes to heart the central rationale of the Writing History series namely to combine theoretical reflection with the practice of producing historical texts It introduces the reader to a variety of important theoretical approaches in the field of contemporary history writing and asks how these approaches have shaped historical writing in this important sub-discipline Writing Contemporary History an invaluable introduction to the central debates that have shaped the field of contemporary history

Generations in Twentieth-Century Europe Stephen Lovell, 2007-09-26 The concept of generation is ubiquitous in common parlance and public discourse it is used to explain family relationships consumer preferences political change and much else besides But how can generation be used by historians Do generations really exist or are they constructed and manipulated by social and cultural elites In pursuit of answers to these questions this book ranges from World War I to the baby boomers and from Spain to the Soviet Union Twentieth-Century Europe P. M. H. Bell, 2006-05-26 Beginning with the fundamental question what is Europe this history of the continent from 1900 to 2004 opens up a whole range of fresh perspectives Painting, Politics and the Struggle for the École de Paris, 1944-1964 Natalie Adamson, 2009 Painting Politics and the Struggle for the École de Paris 1944-1964 is the first book dedicated to the postwar or nouvelle École de Paris It challenges the customary relegation of the École de Paris to the footnotes not by arguing for some hitherto hidden merit for the art and ideas associated with this school but by establishing how and why the École de Paris was a highly significant vehicle for artistic and political debate The book presents a sustained historical study of how this school was constituted by the paintings of a diverse group of artists by the combative field of art criticism and by the curatorial policies of galleries and state exhibitions By thoroughly mining the extensive resources of the newspaper and art journal press gallery and government archives artists writings and interviews with surviving artists and art critics the book traces the artists exhibitions and art critical debates that made the École de Paris a zone of aesthetic and political conflict Through setting the École de Paris into its artistic social and political context Natalie Adamson demonstrates how it functioned as the defining force in French postwar art in its defence of the tradition of easel painting as well as an international point of reference for the expansion of modernism In doing so she presents a wholly new perspective on the vexed relationships between painting politics and national identity in France during the two decades following World War II
