

MOTHERHOOD DURING COVID-19

How to Balance Your Child's Nutrition

How can I protect my newborn from Covid-19?

To protect your baby's immunity, breastfeeding provides the best immunisation, including antibodies in breast milk, within the first six months of birth. Breast milk contains all the best antibodies. Breast milk also provides the best protection to support your baby's growth and development. The exclusive first breastfeeding is the best way to protect against infections and strengthen newborn immunity.

By breastfeeding your baby, you are also protecting your baby from getting Covid-19. Breastfeeding also provides the best protection to support your baby's growth and development. The exclusive first breastfeeding is the best way to protect against infections and strengthen newborn immunity.

How long should I breastfeed my child for it to be beneficial?

Some mothers may choose to breastfeed for a few weeks when their baby is born, or breastfeed for up to 12 months. Depending on how long you breastfeed your child, it is a personal decision. But breastfeeding for longer is better. Exclusive breastfeeding for 6 months is the best way to protect your baby from getting Covid-19.

01 First Six Months

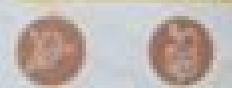

Your first breast milk, also known as colostrum, has a high concentration of antibodies and other immune properties that protect your newborn against diseases like diarrhoea, an infection in the digestive tract.

02 First Six Months

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends exclusively breastfeeding the baby until they are at least 6 months old, as breast milk provides optimal nutrition for the baby for the first six months of life. Your breast milk composition also changes with time to the baby's changing needs during the first six months.

03 Beyond Six Months

Beyond 6 months, breast milk alone will no longer be able to provide all the nutrition required for growth and development.

It may also cause the baby to be too full, as the baby's stomach is still small and the baby's body is still growing.

Your child's diet has to be supplemented with complementary foods like formula or solids. Most babies start to show signs of weaning, usually around the sixth month, but mothers can introduce appropriate solid foods to infants at any time after 6 months and before the end of 1 completed month.

It is important for the baby to get the right amount of nutrition to support healthy growth and development. Breastfeeding is the best way to protect your baby from getting Covid-19.
