CHILDREN'S BOOK 5

Dear _____

Welcome to Book 5 of Music Makers: At the Keyboard!

By the time you have gotten to this point in Music Makers: At the Keyboard you have already learned to play many songs by ear in multiple positions on the keyboard. Your ability to read music has made it possible for you to play some of the same pieces that young pianists, from all over the world, have studied. You have been introduced to the great music of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Gluck, Haydn, MacDowell, Mozart, and Saint-Saëns.

As you begin working in Book 5, you will encounter more music of Beethoven, Haydn, and Mozart; you will be introduced to Mendel and Brahms, and you will learn to play a piece by Frederick Chopin. Additionally, you will be treated to several improvised solos by Howard Bass. These will help to prepare you for making important decisions regarding the improvised solos you will be working on throughout the semester.

We will continue to work on playing scales, working on to playing with both hands in parallel motion, and you will be learning to play arpeggios. There are several lovely pieces to learn and learn to, challenging notation games to play, and a musical time-line that we will work on throughout the semester.

The assignments are laid out as in previous books: two pages for Keyboard Assignments and one page for Listening, Games, and Writing. Be sure to do all your assignments each week. Working carefully in your book, and with the CDs and notation games, in addition to practicing the pieces will ensure that you become the well-rounded musician you are destined to be!

Congratulations on completing the first four books of this series. Continue to enjoy playing the songs from the previous two years!
