South Africa Survey, 2008 Educational Assessment in a Time of Reform Coert Loock, Vanessa

Scherman, 2019-11-20 Educational Assessment in a Time of Reform provides background information on large scale examination systems more generally and the South African examination specifically. It traces the reforms in the education system of South Africa since 1994 and provides a description of the advances in modern test theory that could be considered for future standard setting endeavours. At the heart of the book is the debate on whether the current standard of education in Africa is good enough. If not, then how can it be improved? The aim of this book is to provide a point of departure for discussions on standard setting, quality assurance, equating of examinations and assessment approaches. From this point of departure, recommendations for practices in general and the exit level Grade 12 examination results in particular can be made. This book is ideal reading for principals, teachers, academics and researchers in the fields of educational assessment, measurement and evaluation.

High-Stakes Testing in Education Theo J.H.M. Eggen, Gordon Stobart, 2015-10-14 High stakes educational testing is a global phenomenon which is increasing in both scale and importance. Assessments are high stakes when there are serious consequences for one or more stakeholders. Historically, tests have largely been used for selection or for providing a licence to practise, making them high stakes for the test takers. Testing is now also used for the purposes of improving standards of teaching and learning and of holding schools accountable for their students' results. These tests then become high stakes for teachers and schools, especially when they have to meet externally imposed targets. More recent has been the emergence of international comparative testing which has become high stakes for governments and policy makers as their education systems are judged in relation to the performances of other countries. In this book, we draw on research which examines each of these uses of high stakes testing. The articles evaluate the impact of such assessments and explore the issues of value and fairness which they raise. To underline the international appeal of high stakes testing, the studies are drawn from Australia, Africa, the Caribbean, Europe, former Soviet republics and North America. Collectively, they illustrate the power of high stakes assessment in shaping for better or for worse policy making and schooling. This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education: Principles, Policy, Practice.

Assessing Academic Literacy in a Multilingual Society Albert Weideman, John Read, Theo du Plessis, 2020-11-02 South African universities face major challenges in meeting the needs of their students in the area of academic language and literacy. The dominant medium of instruction in the universities is English and to a much lesser extent Afrikaans, but only a minority of the national population are native speakers of these languages. Nine other languages can be media of instruction in schools, which makes the transition to tertiary education difficult enough in itself for students from these schools. The focus of this book is on procedures for assessing the academic language and literacy levels and needs of students, not in order to exclude students from higher education but rather to identify those who would benefit from further development of their ability in order to undertake their degree studies successfully The volume also aims to bring the innovative solutions designed by South African educators to a wider international audience

The Youth Dividend Jan H. Hofmeyr, 2012 Research for Educational Change Jill Adler, Anna Sfard, 2016-06-17 Research for Educational Change presents ways in which educational research can fulfil its commitments to educational practice Focussing its discussion within the context of mathematics education it argues that while research generated insights can have beneficial effects on learning and teaching the question of how these effects are to be generated and sustained is far from evident The question of how to turn research into educational improvement is discussed here in the context of learning and teaching hindered by poverty and social injustice In the first part of the book four teams of researchers use different methodologies while analysing the same corpus of data collected in a South African mathematics classroom In the second part each of these teams makes a specific proposal about what can be done and how so that its research generated insights have a tangible beneficial impact on what is happening in mathematical classrooms Combining two discourses that of researchers speaking to one another and that of researchers communicating their insights to those responsible for educational practice the book deals with the perennial question of communication between those who study educational processes and those who are directly responsible for teacher education educational research and classroom practices This book will be key reading for postgraduates researchers and academics in education and particularly in the areas of mathematics education education research teacher education and classroom practice It will also appeal to teacher educators practitioners and undergraduate students interested in educational research
