School Leaders' Response to the Increasing Population of Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Learners Nia E. Hulse, 2020 While schools become more representative of a growing minority population school leaders are responsible for making school policies reflective of the increasing number of culturally and linguistically diverse CLD learners The purpose of this study was to examine the practices employed by school leaders in growing CLD schools to determine to what extent they employed culturally responsive school leadership practices The methodology for this study was a multiple case study design Through this qualitative approach data triangulation was achieved by conducting interviews a questionnaire and collecting artifacts In addition purposeful sampling was used to obtain a school leader from an urban district in Utah Massachusetts and New York to participate in this study Each of the three principals in this study led a school with at least 29 percent of English Language Learners and 80 percent of students from low socioeconomic backgrounds The findings suggest the need to develop relationships with teachers parents and students as the foundation for school leaders to create culturally responsive school environments In addition school leaders in these diverse school environments were eager to address deficit thinking through critical conversations with their staff and prioritized meeting students socioeconomic academic and language needs

Implications of this study indicate the need for leadership preparation programs to prepare more equity minded school leaders

Multiculturalism and Multilingualism at the Crossroads of School Leadership Jon C. Veenis, Sylvia Robertson, Jami Royal Berry, 2020-10-01 This volume builds upon emergent understandings about educational leadership and policy in hopes of continuing to refine our understanding of what effective leadership means in linguistically and culturally diverse school contexts The volume seeks to entrench a deeper understanding of the broader leadership policies and practices that promote the success of linguistically and culturally diverse students while also recognizing that effective leadership can be highly dependent on context It offers original empirical research that enhances an understanding of the interdependencies between leadership culture language and policy i e the mechanisms that engender or hinder successful stewardship of linguistic and cultural plurality The confluence of school leadership linguistic diversity and multiculturalism makes this volume unique especially considering the pace at which global migration continues to accelerate coupled with the need to accommodate an array of diverse learning needs in today s schools
