Kitchener's Army Peter Simkins, 2007-08-30 Numbering over five million men Britain's army in the First World War was the biggest in the country's history Remarkably nearly half those men who served in it were volunteers 2 466 719 men enlisted between August 1914 and December 1915 many in response to the appeals of the Field Marshal Lord Kitchener How did Britain succeed in creating a mass army almost from scratch in the middle of a major war What compelled so many men to volunteer and what happened to them once they had taken the King's shilling Peter Simkins describes how Kitchener's New Armies were raised and reviews the main political economic and social effects of the recruiting campaign He examines the experiences and impressions of the officers and men who made up the New Armies As well as analysing their motives for enlisting he explores how they were fed housed equipped and trained before they set off for active service abroad Drawing upon a wide variety of sources ranging from government papers to the diaries and letters of individual soldiers he questions long held assumptions about the rush to the colours and the nature of patriotism in 1914 The book will be of interest not only to those studying social political and economic history but also to general readers who wish to know more about the story of Britain's citizen soldiers in the Great War

Race to the Front Kevin D. Stubbs, 2002-09-30 When war broke out in Europe in 1914 nearly every combatant foresaw a short decisive conflict Experience would soon prove however that this belief was sorely misplaced Eventually excessive economic dislocations would topple every authoritarian regime Only the intervention of the United States would save the British and the French from collapse This book traces the trilateral struggle between the Entente the Central Powers and the United States to determine the outcome of the war Stubbs focuses on a few essential factors vital to understanding this three way race the acquisition of war materiel food human resources and the movement of each In an analysis of coalition strategies it is not enough to study the memoirs and memoranda of General Staffs or political figures engaged in war One must also examine the roles played by each population their industries economy means of transportation and the financial decisions that make such strategies possible In short the material foundations of war set the boundaries within which strategic maneuvers occur Ultimately the United States determined the outcome of the First World War not simply because it provided the last untapped reservoir of manpower but due to its overall economic contributions to the allied effort
