Ortega,Alexander Gómez-A,Lucas Cuenya,Javier Leonardo Rico,2020-05-11 Latin America has increased its share of world scientific publications by nearly twofold during the last two decades approximately from 2 to 4% Despite this positive trend the scholarly impact of scientific research produced in the region

measured in terms of citation rate remains low Two interrelated factors that contribute to this situation is that most research groups tend to work in isolation or in local sporadic collaboration and results are often published in journals that are not indexed in major citation databases e g SCOPUS or Web of Science Ultimately part of Latin American high quality research seems to remain hidden from the rest of the world Over the last decades an important number of Latin American scientists have developed fruitful research agendas on questions on learning and emotion focusing on basic and or translational research with humans and other animal models and implementing diverse methodologies Notwithstanding the important contributions of these research programs Latin American research on emotion and learning has followed the overall trend of other research fields throughout the region namely remaining partially hidden from the large scientific community of the world This Research Topic aimed to engage researchers from Latin America to share their empirical and conceptual work on learning and emotion Ultimately this effort was expected to strengthen and integrate our regional community of experts enhance global networking and establish new challenges and developments for future investigation

Neuroscience of Human Attachment Anna Buchheim ,Carol George,Harald Gündel,Roberto Viviani,2017-08-15 Attachment is a biologically emotion regulation based system guiding cognitive and emotional processes with respect to intimate and significant relationships Secure relationships promote infants exploration of the world and expand their mastery of the environment Adverse attachment experiences like maltreatment loss and separation have long been known to have enduring unfavorable effects on human mental health Research on the neurobiological basis of attachment started with animal studies focusing on emotional deprivation and its behavioral molecular and endocrine consequences The present book presents an interdisciplinary synthesis of existing knowledge and new perspectives on the human neuroscience of attachment showing the tremendous development of this field The following chapters include innovative studies that are representative of the broad spectrum of current approaches These involve both differing neurobiological types of substrates using measures like fMRI EEG psychophysiology endocrine parameters and genetic polymorphisms as well as psychometric approaches to classify attachment patterns in individuals The findings we have acquired in the meanwhile on the neural substrates of attachment in healthy subjects lay the foundation of studies with clinical groups The final section of the book addresses evidence on changes in the functioning of these neural substrates in psychopathology
