4.3 Determining the Scope of the Information Security Management System

It is important to understand the scope of registration. This document defines the boundaries within which your ISMS will be implemented and operated. In this case, the [Organization Name] headquarters location will be included in the scope of registration. Our team works diligently to ensure our clients receive information security solutions that meet or exceed industry standards.

As the information assurance and risk assessment work will follow those parts of your organization that need to be protected, you'll probably consider the organization, subsidiaries, divisions, departments, products, services, physical locations, mobile workers, geographies, systems, and processes for your scope. Remember to consider the expectations of influential stakeholders and interested parties. What would impact those powerful interested parties if you looked at leaving any section of the organization out of scope? Would you also have to run different systems and end up confusing your employees about what was in and what wasn't?

The scope of registration for ISO 27001-2022 encompasses the [Organization Name] headquarters location and ensuring information security within the boundaries of headquarters operations. This is formally stated as follows: The Information Security Management Systems (ISMS) applies to the provision and management of cost-effective workforce and IT solutions to Federal, State, Local, and Commercial Customers.

4.4 Information Security Management System

In accordance with the requirements of ISO/IEC 27001-2022, [Organization Name] has established and implemented this information security management system (ISMS) and established procedures to maintain and continually improve the system. The master document for the ISMS is this Information Security Management Plan, which follows the same format as the ISO/IEC 27001-2022 standard. If [Organization Name] response to a requirement can be adequately expressed in brief textual format, the response will be included within this manual. Otherwise, this manual will reference the appropriate documents and records and provide contact information for further assistance.

5. Leadership

5.1 Leadership and Commitment

For an organization to be successful, its top management must be committed to providing adequate information security. Through implementing an Information Security Management System (ISMS), top management has taken steps to ensure that the organization's information security policy and objectives align with its strategic direction.
