Techno-Ready Marketing Charles L. Colby,A. Parasuraman,2001-10-05 Conventional techniques for marketing technology products fail primarily because marketers do not truly understand their customers Do you know what customers really think about your technology Now drawing on their award winning research and case studies ranging from America Online to the Discovery Channel marketing experts A Parasuraman and Charles L Colby demonstrate how the adoption of technology is influenced by unique beliefs that do not apply to conventional products and services In the context of a general set of powerful techno marketing strategies Parasuraman and Colby introduce Technology Readiness TR a groundbreaking concept that enables you to measure and assess a customer s predisposition to adopt new technologies Employing their TR construct a psychological amalgam of fears hopes desires and frustrations about technology the authors identify five types of technology customers the highly optimistic and innovative Explorers the innovative yet cautious Pioneers the uncertain Skeptics who need the benefits of technology proved the insecure Paranoids and the resistant Laggards Using this typology you can customize your technology strategies by combining insights from your context specific assessments with general marketing strategies presented in the book Essential reading in technology companies will be the chapter devoted to Parasuraman's Pyramid Model which explains the critical role technology plays in a marketing organization as a link between employees, the organization, and the customer. Finally, the authors have included a self-administered quiz so you can score your own Technology Readiness and a chapter on the Techno Ready Marketing Audit to provide a framework for taking immediate action based on the precepts in this book. PC Mag, 2005-08-09. PCMag.com is a leading authority on technology, delivering Labs-based independent reviews of the latest products and services.
