

A movie poster for 'The Mortal Instruments: City of Bones'. The background features a dramatic sunset or sunrise over a city skyline, with the sun low on the horizon casting a golden glow. In the foreground, two characters are prominently displayed. On the left is a young woman with long, wavy brown hair and a serious expression. On the right is a young man with dark hair, wearing a dark hooded jacket, looking intensely at the viewer. The city skyline in the background includes several skyscrapers, with the Empire State Building being the most prominent. The title 'THE MORTAL INSTRUMENTS' is written in a large, stylized, metallic font across the middle. Below it, 'CITY OF BONES' is written in a smaller, similar font. The entire scene is reflected in a body of water at the bottom.

New Directions in Children's Gothic Anna Jackson,2017-03-27 Children's literature today is dominated by the gothic mode and it is in children's gothic fictions that we find the implications of cultural change most radically questioned and explored This collection of essays looks at what is happening in the children's Gothic now when traditional monsters have become the heroes when new monsters have come into play when globalisation brings Harry Potter into China and yaoguai into the children's Gothic and when childhood itself and children's literature as a genre can no longer be thought of as an uncontested space apart from the debates and power struggles of an adult domain We look in detail at series such as The Mortal Instruments Twilight Chaos Walking The Power of Five Skulduggery Pleasant and Cirque du Freak at novels about witches and novels about changelings at the Gothic in China Japan and Oceania and at authors including Celia Rees Frances Hardinge Alan Garner and Laini Taylor amongst many others At a time when the energies and anxieties of children's novels can barely be contained anymore within the genre of children's literature spilling over into YA and adult literature we need to pay attention Weird things are happening and they matter
