Life Sciences Caps March 2014 Question Paper:

The Carbon Fix Stephanie Paladino, Shirley J Fiske, 2016-11-18 Given the growing urgency to develop global responses to a changing climate The Carbon Fix examines the social and equity dimensions of putting the world's forests and necessarily the rural people who manage and depend on them at the center of climate policy efforts such as REDD intended to slow global warming The book assesses the implications of international policy approaches that focus on forests as carbon and especially forest carbon offsets for rights justice and climate governance Contributions from leading anthropologists and geographers analyze a growing trend towards market principles and financialization of nature in environmental governance placing it into conceptual critical and historical context The book then challenges perceptions of forest carbon initiatives through in depth field based case studies assessing projects policies and procedures at various scales from informed consent to international carbon auditing While providing a mixed assessment of the potential for forest carbon initiatives to balance carbon with social goals the authors present compelling evidence for the complexities of the carbon offset enterprise fraught with competing interests and interpretations at multiple scales and having unanticipated and often deleterious effects on the resources and rights of the world's poorest peoples especially indigenous and rural peoples The Carbon Fix provides nuanced insights into political economic and ethical issues associated with climate change policy Its case approach and fresh perspective are critical to environmental professionals development planners and project managers and to students in upper level undergraduate and graduate courses in environmental anthropology and geography environmental and policy studies international development and indigenous studies
