Air Power and Colonial Control David E. Omissi, 1990 Air policing was used in many colonial possessions but its most effective incidence occurred in the crescent of territory from north eastern Africa through South West Arabia to North West Frontier of India This book talks about air policing and its role in offering a cheaper means of pacification in the inter war years It illuminates the potentialities and limitations of the new aerial technology and makes important contributions to the history of colonial resistance and its suppression Air policing was employed in the campaign against Mohammed bin Abdulla Hassan and his Dervish following in Somaliland in early 1920 The book discusses the relationships between air control and the survival of Royal Air Force in Iraq and between air power and indirect imperialism in the Hashemite kingdoms It discusses Hugh Trenchard's plans to substitute air for naval or coastal forces and assesses the extent to which barriers of climate and geography continued to limit the exercise of air power Indigenous responses include being terrified at the mere sight of aircraft to the successful adaptation to air power which was hardly foreseen by either the opponents or the supporters of air policing The book examines the ethical debates which were a continuous undercurrent to the stream of argument about repressive air power methods from a political and operational perspective It compares air policing as practised by other European powers by highlighting the Rif war in Morocco the Druze revolt in Syria and Italy's war of reconquest in Libya Studien Zur Geschichte Osteuropas, 1962 Census Bureau Methodological Research United States. Bureau of the Census, 1972 Census Bureau Methodological Research, 1971 The Department of State in the Middle East, 1919-1945 Phillip J.
