*ppb = parts per billion There are currently no health-protective mandated "total content limits" for toxicants (as measured in ppb) for products in this product category; these Action Levels were proposed by the scientific and medical community with the Baby Food Safety Act of 2021— as intervention levels which are protective of children's health ("Action Level" = level at which action should be taken to reduce the level; also level at which the public should be informed that the level is concerning / has potential to cause harm to children). The proposed Action Level is shared here to lend context to the levels of toxicants found in this particular product, as all consumable products (foods & supplements) have the potential to impact pregnant women OR children. This is the graphic that accompanies the above referenced article. Concepts, context, and relevance are discussed in detail in the article.
