Leadership And Management Paper:

Leadership and Management - A closer look on Differences and Managerial Roles Christopher Schroeder, 2012-09-06 Seminar paper from the year 2010 in the subject Business economics Offline Marketing and Online Marketing grade 1 7 AKAD University of Applied Sciences Pinneberg course FGI 03 language English abstract Today's business is based on the division of labor. Different people have to work together in order to create values and offer products or services. But these people are individuals with different needs and wants, different skills and abilities. They have different social, economical or cultural backgrounds as well as different working methods. They have opposing interests and suffer from a lack of information about what others need and want. Therefore, the division of labor requires a coordinating element: a manager or a leader. It is their task to coordinate all the individuals, creating a unified direction of work. By this, all efforts can be focused on a common goal. Commonly, the terms management and leadership are used synonymously with reference to the coordination function in business or administration. This raises the question whether there is a difference between the two terms, management and leadership, and if so, how this difference can be described and defined. Sometimes one can hear the saying that managers do the things right but leaders do the right things. This adage states a significant difference between leadership and management. However, there is a heated debate about this topic. The opinions differ widely about this topic. This paper will discuss the terms management and leadership in a theoretical and practical way. These two terms will be defined as well as differentiated from each other. A special focus will be laid on the management functions and managerial roles and activities. This will be discussed from a theoretical point of view. In addition, a practical example will clarify the theoretical angle.

Concept of leadership and management within the manufacturing industry Andreas Leitner, 2005-01-04 Essay from the year 2004 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 1 Glyndwr University Wrexham known as NEWI NEWI Wales Business School language English abstract Before discussing the concept of Leadership and Management within the Manufacturing Industry, it's important to define clearly what does Leadership and Management mean, because these two words are often used interchangeably. Most people think there exists no difference between a Manager and a Leader; therefore, they think that the person who seems to be the Leader must be a Manager or the other way round: every Manager must be a Leader. In this paper, the differences of Leadership and Management are defined. Furthermore, it discusses several management systems as well as several Leadership models. The difference between Leadership and Management is elaborated and discussed. Management can be seen as the formal structure of an organisation. The main goal is to find a structure in which the people can work together very effectively to increase productivity. On the other hand, Leadership deals with people. It tries to change the behaviour of the superior itself, admit a better co-operation between each employee. Therefore, the communication and trust between superior and subordinate as well as the communication between subordinates becomes very important. It can be also seen as the informal
