

Meiosis

Meiosis is the special form of cell division used to produce gametes. It has two important functions:

- To form haploid cells with half the normal chromosome number
- To re-arrange the chromosomes with a novel combination of genes (genetic recombination)

Meiosis comprises two successive divisions, without DNA replication in between. The second division is a bit like mitosis, but the first division is different in many important respects. The details are shown in this diagram for a hypothetical cell with 2 pairs of homologous chromosomes ($n=2$):

First Division		Second Division
Interphase I <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • chromatin not visible • DNA & proteins replicated 		Interphase II <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Short • no DNA replication • chromosomes remain visible.
Prophase I <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • chromosomes visible • homologous chromosomes join together to form a bivalent 		Prophase II <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • centrioles replicate and move to new poles.
Metaphase I <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • bivalents line up on equator 		Metaphase II <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • chromosomes line up on equator.
Anaphase I <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • chromosomes separate (not chromatids- centromere doesn't split) 		Anaphase II <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • centromeres split • chromatids separate.
Telophase I <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • nuclei form • cell divides • cells have 2 chromosomes, not 4 chromatids. 		Telophase II <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 4 haploid cells, each with 2 chromatids • cells often stay together to form a tetrad.
