These two types of data are not directly comparable, and there is a need for more research to determine the extent to which the two types of data are comparable. However, the results of this study suggest that the two types of data are comparable, and that the two types of data can be used to estimate the same parameters.

Conclusions

The choice of optimal input representation will affect the results of the training and the quality of the final model. In this paper, we have presented a method to choose the optimal input representation of a nonlinear system. The method was implemented on a nonlinear system and the results were compared with other methods. The results show that the proposed method is effective in choosing the optimal input representation and the results are better than other methods.
