From Is to Ought: The Place of Normative Models in the Study of Human Thought Shira Elqayam,David E. Over,2016-08-12 In the study of human thinking two main research questions can be asked Descriptive Q What is human thinking like Normative Q What ought human thinking be like For decades these two questions have dominated the field and the relationship between them generated many a controversy

Empirical normativist approaches regard the answers to these questions as positively correlated in essence human thinking is what it ought to be although what counts as the ought standard is moot In contemporary theories of reasoning and decision making this is often associated with a Panglossian framework an adaptationist approach which regards human thinking as a priori rational In contrast prescriptive normativism sees the answers to these two questions as negatively correlated Normative models are still relevant to human thought but human behaviour deviates from them quite markedly with the invited conclusion that humans are often irrational Prescriptive normativism often results in a Meliorist agenda which sees rationality as amenable to education Both empirical and prescriptive normativism can be contrasted with a descriptivist framework for psychology of human thinking Following Hume's strict divide between the is and the ought descriptivism regards the descriptive and normative research questions as uncorrelated or dissociated with only the former question suitable for psychological study of human behaviour This basic division carries over to the relation between normative ought rationality based on conforming to normative standards and instrumental rationality based on achieving one's goals Descriptivist approaches regard the two as dissociated whereas normativist approaches tend to see them as closely linked with normative arguments defining and justifying instrumental rationality This research topic brings together diverse contributions to the continuing debate Featuring contributions from leading researchers in the field the e book covers a wide range of subjects arranged by six sections The standard picture Normativist perspectives In defence of soft normativism Exploring normative models Descriptivist perspectives Evolutionary and ecological accounts Empirical reports With a total of some 24 articles from 55 authors this comprehensive treatment includes theoretical analyses meta theoretical critiques commentaries and a range of empirical reports The contents of the Research Topic should appeal to psychologists linguists philosophers and cognitive scientists with research interests in a wide range of domains from language through reasoning judgment and decision making and moral judgment to epistemology and theory of mind philosophical logic and meta ethics

Preventing Weaponization of CNS-acting Chemicals Michael Crowley, Malcolm Dando, 2025-11-24

Recent advances in neuroscience the study of the mechanisms within the brain that underlie our behaviours and what happens when these go wrong have been profound However benignly intended neurological research that seeks to understand dysfunction in the central nervous system CNS could be misused for example in the development of novel CNS acting chemical agent weapons for use in armed conflict and also in repression of civilian populations This book follows a 3 step Holistic Arms Control approach examining the bio chemical agents and relevant physiological systems they affect as well as associated dual use technologies that need to be regulated analysing a range of potentially applicable international law international arms control disarmament and other instruments and attendant control regimes constraining misuse and finally providing a strategy to strengthen existing regulatory mechanisms as well as suggest new measures to prevent the misuse of the neurosciences and associated dual use technologies without limiting the widespread health and other societal benefits that flow from their benign application Suitable for biochemists and researchers in the areas of neuroscience neurochemistry and neuropharmacology this book will also be of interest for those working in arms control disarmament and related legal fields as well as forensic medicine and toxicology Management Information Systems R. Kelly Rainer,Brad Prince,Hugh J. Watson,2016-11-16 The 4th Edition of Management Information Systems promotes active learning like no other text in the market Each chapter is comprised of tightly coupled concepts and section level student activities that transport your students from passively learning about IS to doing IS in a realistic context Management, International Adaptation John R. Schermerhorn,Daniel G. Bachrach,2024 Management 15th edition continues to offer the same balanced theoretical approach as with previous editions Students need an active and engaged learning classroom environment that brings personal meaning to course content and the instructor s course objectives The book communicates with students through rich timely features and cases that bring management topics theories and concepts to life The underlying goal is to translate foundation theories into lasting tools for students as they move beyond the classroom where their skills will be put to the test This international edition has been revised and updated with a focus on timely content student engagement through real world challenges and personal career issues Centralizing new topics such as diversity equity inclusion and social impact this edition introduces new feature of Issues to attract learners attention to timely social and organizational issues as well as new cases and more opportunities for self assessment Report of the Annual Meeting British Association for the Advancement of Science.
