Covers all models of M range from M3 to M6 except M6 TTL Oskar Barnack - from the Idea to the Leica, 2017-10-13 It is approximately one hundred years ago that Oskar Barnack designed a camera for 35 mm motion picture film without a forerunner or any camera with similar specifications. The camera was to fit in a coat pocket and should always be ready to take pictures. Those were Oskar Barnack's self-imposed objectives. On 31 December 1839 the Münchner Politische Zeitung Munich political newspaper reported about a recent simplification of the Daguerrian method by Professor Steinheil who had developed a camera for 4 x 4 cm negatives and who demanded that camera and pictures should be even significantly smaller in order for photography to achieve a greater popularity. Oskar Barnack did not know about this report but it was Barnack who satisfied this demand 75 years later. The Leica was ridiculed in 1925 but in 1932 one hundred thousand cameras had been distributed all over the world. The Leica made it possible for the photographer to experience a new spirit in photography, a photography of the actual events. Contrived scenes were no longer necessary. But who was Oskar Barnack? What led him to the idea to design a camera around 35 mm motion picture film fit in the coat pocket and produced only a postage stamp sized negative? Experts of the time said that could not be possible. However the renowned manufacturer of microscopes Ernst Leitz of Wetzlar, Germany, which had never produced a camera, decided to manufacture this camera. Why? In Germany at this time was the world's largest and most innovative camera industry. However life was difficult because of ruinous competition between large camera manufacturers. Still the Leica could establish itself in a masterful way. How Oskar

Barnack arrived at his idea and how he accomplished it is described in this book Leica General Catalogue for 1933 Ernst Leitz, 2006-11-15 This is a replica of the original Leica English Language Catalogues as issued by E Leitz from Wetzlar It is applicable to all English Language markets Each catalog has been chosen for years when models changed and they thus relate to key years in Leica history As a group they cover the period from the 1930s up to 1975 including the cameras lenses and the many accessories as well as projectors and enlargers This catalog covers models II III and Standard The New Leica Manual Willard Detering Morgan, Henry M.
