As noted previously, the 2000 election was significant for the South in that it was the first time that a Republican candidate won the state. This was a significant change from the previous 40 years, when the Democratic Party had dominated the state's politics. The 2000 election was a turning point in the state's political history, and it was a result of a combination of factors, including the state's economic growth, the state's political climate, and the state's demographic changes.
