Chase's Calendar of Events 2014 with CD-ROM Editors of Chase's Calendar of Events, 2013-10-10 4 000 notable birthdays 1 400 historical anniversaries 650 national and international holidays 160 religious holidays and thousands of additional days of note from all over the globe Cover Recent Advances in  $\gamma\delta$  T Cell Biology: New Ligands, New Functions, and New Translational Perspectives Dieter Kabelitz, Julie Dechanet-Merville, 2016-02-16

Gamma delta T cells are a small subset of T lymphocytes in the peripheral circulation but constitute a major T cell population at other anatomical localizations such as the epithelial tissues. In contrast to conventional T cells, the available number of germline genes coding for T cell receptor (TCR) variable elements of T cells is very small. Moreover, there is a preferential localization of T cells expressing given Vgamma and Vdelta genes in certain tissues. In humans, T cells expressing the Vg9Vd2 encoded TCR account for anywhere between 50 and 95% of peripheral blood T cells, whereas cells expressing non Vd2 genes dominate in mucosal tissues. In mice, there is an ordered appearance of T cell waves during embryonic development, resulting in preferential localization of T cells expressing distinct Vgamma/Vdelta genes in the skin, the reproductive organs, or gut epithelia. The major function of T cells resides in local immunosurveillance and immune defense against infection and malignancy. This is supported by the identification of ligands that are selectively recognized by the TCR. As an example, human Vgamma9Vdelta2 T cells recognize phosphorylated metabolites (phosphoantigens) that are secreted by many pathogens but can also be overproduced by tumor cells, providing a basis for a role of these T cells in both anti-infective and anti-tumor immunity. Similarly, the recognition of endothelial protein C receptor by human non Vdelta2 T cells has recently been identified to provide a link for the role for such T cells in immunity against epithelial tumor cells and cytomegalovirus-infected endothelial cells. In addition to classical functions such as cytokine production and cytotoxicity, recent studies suggest that subsets of T cells can exert additional functions such as regulatory activity and quite surprisingly, professional antigen-presenting capacity. It is currently not well known how this tremendous extent of functional plasticity is regulated and what is the extent of TCR ligand diversity. Due to their non-MHC-restricted recognition of unusual stress-associated ligands, T cells have raised great interest as to their potential translational application in cell-based immunotherapy. Topics of this Research Focus include: Molecular insights into the activation and differentiation requirements of T cells; role of pyrophosphates and butyrophilin molecules for the activation of human T cells; role of T cells in tumor immunity and in other infectious and non-infectious diseases and many others. We are most grateful to all colleagues who agreed to write a manuscript. Thanks to their contributions, this E-book presents an up-to-date overview on many facets of the still exciting T cells.
