Thompson,2012-05-20 The M1 Garand gave the US infantryman a marked edge during World War II It shot faster and further than enemy infantry rifles and hit harder No less an authority on killing the enemy than General George S Patton called the Garand The greatest battle implement ever devised At a time when opposing forces were armed with bolt action rifles US troops had a highly reliable self loader The eight round clips which were used to load the M1 Garand were however viewed with mixed emotions by the troops on the ground Some Army and Marine Corps troops allegedly felt that the distinctive twang as the Garand's clip was ejected when empty alerted the enemy that the soldiers were reloading and resulted in an attack. But the Garand became the defining mankiller of the war despite its weight and magazine problems and many US combat veterans consider it one of the key reasons they survived the war.

World War II Infantry Tactics Stephen Bull, 2021-05-27 Despite all technological advances final mastery of any battlefield depends upon the tight knit group of footsoldiers trained to manoeuvre shoot and dig in. This first of a two part study examines the methods by which the Western infantry of World War II the German British and US armies actually brought their firepower to bear. Drawing upon period training manuals for the evolving theory and on personal memoirs for the individual practice this first book covers the organization and tactics of the squad of ten or a dozen men and the platoon of three or four squads. The text is illustrated with contemporary photographs and diagrams and with colour plates bringing to life the movement of soldiers on the battlefield.
