Local Raw Material Sourcing In China:

Local Raw Material Sourcing in China Jonny Phung, 2014-10-08 Master's Thesis from the year 2014 in the subject Business economics Supply Production Logistics grade A Tongji University language English abstract In today's highly competitive and dynamic environment a company's success is based on the performance of its supply chains. Single companies become part of a supply chain by concentrating on its core activities and source capabilities not belonging to its core competence. The importance of the company's supply base has increased immensely. China is becoming the economic engine of the world's economy. In the early 1980s international companies entered the Chinese market to take part of the country's elusively growth and tried to gain edge. Focusing on the automotive industry original equipment manufacturer started to assemble cars from complete knocked down CKD and semi knocked down SKD kits in manufacturing sites in China. Driven by high import duties and legal requirement set by the Chinese government OEMs started to produce locally for the domestic market encouraging their existing supply chain to build up transfer plants in geographic proximity of their manufacturing site. Supply chains in automotive industry are divided in tiers depending on their degree of value creation of the complete products. 1st Tier suppliers themselves encouraging their supplier to set up transfer plants in China. The decision to take the existing supply chain result of long term process to enable a supplier for the automotive supply chain. In 2008 China became the largest single country automotive market overwhelming the US market. Increasing price pressure and matured domestic market led to a localization trend within the automotive supply chain to exploit cost advantage by sourcing locally. Therefore supply bases have to be established by assessing companies to be potential supplier. Suppliers create more than 70% of the total value of the final product resulting in high importance of having excellent supplier. Raw mat Supply Chain-Based Category Strategies for Global Supply Networks Nikos Moraitakis, 2017-07-26 From a supply chain perspective often big differences exist between global raw material suppliers approaches to supply their respective local markets. The progressing complexity of large centrally managed global supply networks and their often unknown upstream ramifications increase the likelihood of undetected bottlenecks and inefficiencies. It is therefore necessary to develop an approach to strategically master the upstream complexity of such networks from a holistic perspective in order to align regional competitive priorities and supply chain structures. The research is set in the context of polyamide engineering thermoplastics in the automotive industry. Based on an initial industry analysis and a literature review a conceptual framework is developed. The framework is matched with existing empirical and theoretical literature as well as multiple case study analyses in the relevant supply market and a centrally managed global supply network. As a result strategic group theory is transferred into the supply network management context to allow for the consideration of upstream supply chain structures in the category strategy development process. The proposed approach introduces strategic groups of supply chains as a segmentation criterion for complex global supply networks which enables the network wide alignment of competitive priorities flexibility requirements and partnerships with suppliers Supply chain based category strategies can effectively reduce the complexity firms are facing in this context The results of this research are applicable for certain types of global supply networks and can be used for network alignment and strategy development The approach can furthermore generate valuable insights useable for negotiation support with suppliers
