The Secure and the Dispossessed Nick Buxton, Ben Hayes, 2015-11-20 While the world's scientists and many of its inhabitants despair at the impact of climate change corporate and military leaders see nothing but opportunities For them melting ice caps mean newly accessible fossil fuels borders to be secured from climate refugees social conflicts to be managed and more failed states in which to intervene They are securing their assets at the expense of the planet and its inhabitants The Secure and the Dispossessed looks at these deadly approaches with a critical eye It also considers the flip side that the legitimacy of the elite is under unprecedented pressure from resistance by communities to resource grabs to those creating new ecological and socially just models for managing our energy food and water Topics covered include geoengineering militarism refugee protection greenwashing and the agricultural crisis among others Adaptation and resilience to a climate changed world is desperately needed but the form it will take will affect all of our futures

Training Students to Extract Value from Big Data National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Mathematical Sciences and Their Applications, Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics, 2015-01-16 As the availability of high throughput data collection technologies such as information sensing mobile devices remote sensing internet log records and wireless sensor networks has grown science engineering and business have rapidly transitioned from striving to develop information from scant data to a situation in which the challenge is now that the amount of information exceeds a human's ability to examine let alone absorb it Data sets are increasingly complex and this potentially increases the problems associated with such concerns as missing information and other quality concerns data heterogeneity and differing data formats The nation's ability to make use of data depends heavily on the availability of a workforce that is properly trained and ready to tackle high need areas Training students to be capable in exploiting big data requires experience with statistical analysis machine learning and computational infrastructure that permits the real problems associated with massive data to be revealed and ultimately addressed Analysis of big data requires cross disciplinary skills including the ability to make modeling decisions while balancing trade offs between optimization and approximation all while being attentive to useful metrics and system robustness To develop those skills in students it is important to identify whom to teach that is the educational background experience and characteristics of a prospective data science student what to teach that is the technical and practical content that should be taught to the student and how to teach that is the structure and organization of a data science program Training Students to Extract Value from Big Data summarizes a workshop convened in April 2014 by the National Research Council's Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics to explore how best to train students to use big data The workshop explored the need for training and curricula and coursework that should be included One impetus for the workshop was the current fragmented view of what is meant by analysis of big data data analytics or data science New graduate programs are introduced regularly and they have their own notions of what is meant by those terms and most important of what students need to know to be proficient in data intensive work This report provides a variety of perspectives about those elements and about their integration into courses and curricula
