action Yet the politics lags behind the science and the economics Collectively the world's governments are failing to act with the urgency demanded by the scale of the threat The window of opportunity for avoiding dangerous climate change is closing fast This year's Human Development Report explains why we have less than a decade to change course and start living within our global carbon budget It explains how climate change will create long run low human development traps pushing vulnerable people into a downward spiral of deprivation Because climate change is a global problem with global causes and effects it demands a global response with countries acting on the basis of their historic responsibility and capabilities The Asia-Pacific Human Development Report, 2010 Arab Human Development Report 2009 United Nations Development Programme. Regional Bureau for Arab States, 2009 The Arab Human Development Report aims at building human development in the Arab world Gender inequality is generally recognized as one of the main obstacles to development in the Arab Region This volume of the report focuses on the history and contemporary dynamics of Arab women's economic political and social empowerment It details the processes in which gender impacts on Arab development while suggesting means of overcoming some of the challenges and building more equitable societies Addressing the Impact of the Phasing Out of Textiles and Clothing Quotas in Lao PDR.: Diversification and value addition in Lao PDR : case studies on tourism, handicraft and food processing sectors, 2007 Social Inequality in Australia Daphne Habibis, Maggie Walter, 2009 Social Inequality Australia at the Crossroads provides comprehensive coverage of the key dimensions of the nature and extent of inequality and difference in Australian society Incorporating debates about the effects of globalization on inequality and difference in Australia it also considers the role of culture in the social reproduction of hierarchy and difference Arguments about the nature of inequality are tested against empirical evidence and case studies in each chapter provide examples to aid understanding FDI in Tourism United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2007 Many developing countries are looking to tourism as a potentially promising avenue for economic and human development This is a relatively new position for some countries and reflects the rapid increase in tourism in terms of both numbers of arrivals and revenues for several economies in recent years FDI is one of the routes through which developing countries can carry out tourism but the dynamics of FDI in this dynamic sector and its implications have been relatively little studied A significant part of tourism's development potential stems from the fact that it links together a series of cross cutting activities involving the provision of goods and services such as accommodation transport entertainment construction and agricultural and fisheries production On the other hand tourism is a sensitive sector that is vulnerable to external shocks economic environmental and political as well as potentially creating problems of its own Contrary to common perceptions one finding of this study is that FDI in tourism is relatively low compared to other globalized activities including services such as telecommunications or finance and compared to domestic investment FDI exists in only a small number of the many diverse activities that comprise what could be called the international tourism economy The main investments are in hotels and restaurants with little FDI in airlines although this is growing and in high profile and important activities such as tour operations or global reservation systems Tourism related FDI is also largely concentrated in developed countries
