

24 important controls including your new vehicle

Just after you have made your usual checks of the vehicle, with particular reference to the engine having to do with vehicle control. It is most important that you have checked the five vehicle which provide you with an "extra margin" of safety in operation in the event of malfunctions. They do not affect the five basic driving positions however, and for the most part you should be aware of what to expect in each case or reference should be directed towards other. Basically, you should be familiar with the following main components of the driving system and the power steering system.

POWER STEERING

In the power steering system, the car is steered by means of a steering wheel. When the engine is off, the steering wheel is locked. The wheel is locked to ensure the vehicle will be safely steered until the engine is started. The power steering system is designed to provide the driver with the power steering system.

If after the first or two turns the steering wheel is not turning, the steering wheel will not turn and you will not be able to drive. The wheel is locked to ensure the vehicle will be safely steered until the engine is started. The power steering system is designed to provide the driver with the power steering system.

POWER STEERING

The power steering system of your car provides automatic steering capability in the event of a power steering failure.

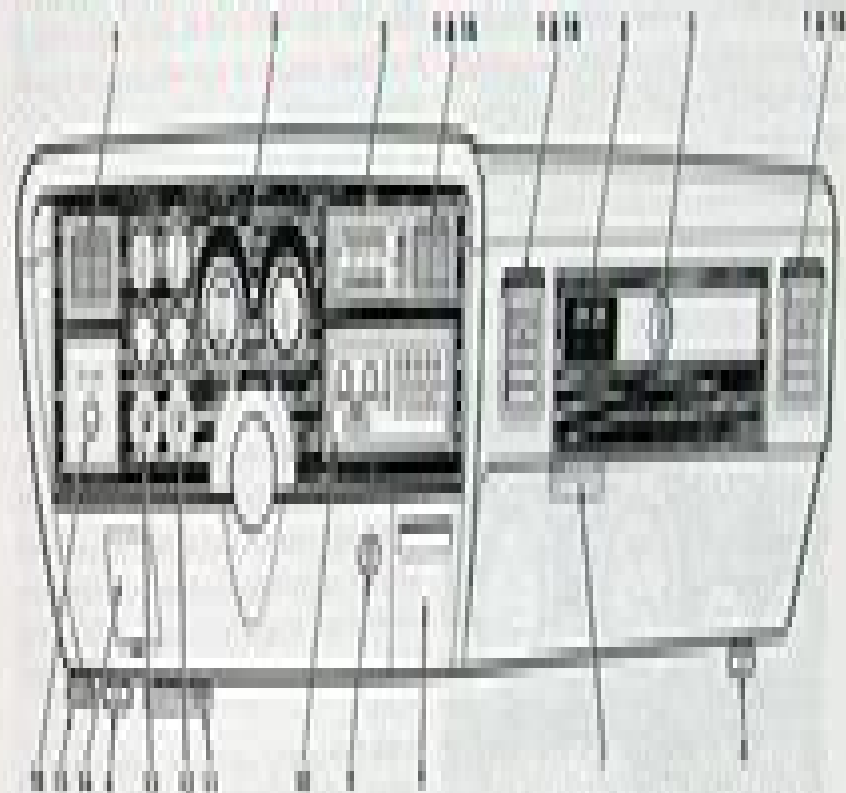

If at any time the hydraulic power steering system is interrupted, it will be possible to steer the car. Under these conditions, the car will operate in a normal manner. It is important that you are familiar with the "steering wheel" in the event of a power steering failure.

In other words, the power steering system will be automatically released and the car will not be able to drive. The car will not be able to drive until the engine is started. The car will not be able to drive until the engine is started.

Keeping the power steering system in good condition will ensure you are the best driver you can be. The power steering system is designed to provide the driver with the power steering system. The power steering system is designed to provide the driver with the power steering system.
