✓	Bump, jar, shake or physically punish the system, especially while it is running.
✓	Drop the system. Even if it is in a carrying case, many cases are not padded well enough for excessively rough treatment.
✓	Pack a laptop in luggage that will be checked at the airport, thus subjecting it to very rough handling.
✓	Place heavy cases or other objects on top of a laptop (such as in the overhead compartment on a plane), even if it is in a carrying case.
✓	Store the system where the temperature is below 41°F (5°C) or above 95°F (35° C).
✓	Operate the computer on a blanket or other soft surface where material might bunch up and cover the cooling vents on the sides or back, which will cause the system to overheat.
✓	Operate the computer while it is still half-inside a carrying case, which will block the cooling vents and cause overheating.
✓	Place the system closer than about 5 inches (13cm) from any electrical device that generates a strong magnetic field, such as electric motors, TVs, refrigerators, and large audio speakers.
✓	Operate two-way radio transmitters in close proximity to the system, which can induce currents and voltages causing lockups or failures.
✓	Spill liquids on the system, which may contaminate the internal components and/or cause a short circuit.
✓	Place heavy objects on the system with the lid closed or pack the system in a tightly compressed suitcase or bag, which may put excessive pressure on the LCD panel.
✓	Place an object between the display lid and keyboard, which may cause damage when the lid is closed.
✓	Pick up or hold the system by the LCD panel, which may damage the display and/or the hinges.
✓	Scratch, twist, or push on the surface of the LCD panel.
✓	Move the system or pull on the AC adapter cord while the adapter is plugged in, which may cause the plug to break off and/or damage the socket.
✓	Plug a modem cable into an Ethernet port (and vice versa), which may damage the connectors.
✓	Hard-mount the system in a vehicle or anywhere that it is subject to strong vibration.
✓	Crush, drop, or press on the cover of a disk drive while it is removed from the system.
✓	Insert a floppy disk into a floppy drive at an angle or upside down, which may cause it to jam in the drive.
✓	Place more than one label on a floppy disk, which might cause it to jam in the drive.
✓	Touch the lens on the CD-ROM tray when it is open, which may contaminate the lens and/or throw it out of alignment.
✓	Connect the internal modem in the system to a private branch exchange (PBX) or other digital telephone line that may subject the modem to improper voltages, thus causing permanent damage.
✓	Forget your passwords. If you forget a supervisor or hard disk password, there is no easy way to reset it, and you may have to replace the motherboard or hard disk.
