Approximation Methods and Analytical Modeling Using Partial Differential Equations Tamara Fastovska, Yurii Kolomoitsev, Kateryna Buryachenko, Marina Chugunova, 2025-03-28 Adequate mathematical modeling is the key to success for many real world projects in engineering medicine and other applied areas As soon as an appropriate mathematical model is developed it can be comprehensively analyzed by a broad spectrum of available mathematical methods For example compartmental models are widely used in mathematical epidemiology to describe the dynamics of infectious diseases and in mathematical models of population genetics While the existence of an optimal solution under certain condition can be often proved rigorously this does not always mean that such a solution is easy to implement in practice Finding a reasonable approximation can in itself be a challenging research problem This Research Topic is devoted to modeling analysis and approximation problems whose solutions exploit and explore the theory of partial differential equations It aims to highlight new analytical tools for use in the modeling of problems arising in applied sciences and practical areas Researchers are invited to submit articles that investigate the qualitative behavior of weak solutions removability conditions for singularities the dependence of the local asymptotic property of these solutions on initial and boundary data and also the existence of solutions Contributors are particularly encouraged to focus on anisotropic models analyzing the preconditions on the strength of the anisotropy and comparing the analytical estimates for the growth behavior of the solutions near the singularities with the observed growth in numerical simulations The qualitative analysis and analytical results should be confirmed by the numerically observed solution behavior

Sabzaliev,Ilhama M. Sabzalieva,2018-05-03 Based on and enriched by the long term teaching experience of the authors this volume covers the major themes of mathematics in engineering and technical specialties The book addresses the elements of linear algebra and analytic geometry differential calculus of a function of one variable and elements of higher algebra On each theme the authors first present short theoretical overviews and then go on to give problems to be solved The authors provide the solutions to some typical relatively difficult problems and guidelines for solving them The authors consider the development of the self dependent thinking ability of students in the construction of problems and indicate which problems are relatively difficult The book is geared so that some of the problems presented can be solved in class and others are meant to be solved independently An extensive explanatory solution of at least one typical problem is included with emphasis on applications formulas and rules This volume is primarily addressed to advanced students of engineering and technical specialties as well as to engineers technicians and instructors of mathematics Key features Presents the theoretical background necessary for solving problems including definitions rules formulas and theorems on the particular theme Provides an extended solution of at least one problem on every theme and guidelines for solving some difficult problems Selects problems for independent study as well as those for classroom time taking into account the similarity of both sets of problems Differentiates relatively difficult problems from others for those who want to study mathematics more deeply Provides answers to the problems within the text rather than at the back of the book enabling more direct verification of problem solutions Presents a selection of problems and solutions that are very interesting not only for the students but also for professor teacher staff      Boundary Value Problems on Time Scales, Volume I Svetlin Georgiev,Khaled Zennir,2021-10-14 Boundary Value Problems on Time Scales Volume I is devoted to the qualitative theory of boundary value problems on time scales Summarizing the most recent contributions in this area it addresses a wide audience of specialists such as mathematicians physicists engineers and biologists It can be used as a textbook at the graduate level and as a reference book for several disciplines The text contains two volumes both published by Chapman Hall CRC Press Volume I presents boundary value problems for first and second order dynamic equations on time scales Volume II investigates boundary value problems for three four and higher order dynamic equations on time scales Many results to differential equations carry over easily to corresponding results for difference equations while other results seem to be totally different in nature. Because of these reasons the theory of dynamic equations is an active area of research. The time scale calculus can be applied to any field in which dynamic processes are described by discrete or continuous time models. The calculus of time scales has various applications involving noncontinuous domains such as certain bug populations, phytoremediation of metals, wound healing, maximization problems in economics and traffic problems. Boundary value problems on time scales have been extensively investigated in simulating processes and the phenomena subject to short time perturbations during their evolution. The material in this book is presented in highly readable, mathematically solid format. Many practical problems are illustrated displaying a wide variety of solution techniques.

AUTHORS Svetlin G. Georgiev is a mathematician who has worked in various areas of the study. He currently focuses on harmonic analysis, functional analysis, partial differential equations, ordinary differential equations, Clifford and quaternion analysis, integral equations, and dynamic calculus on time scales. Khaled Zennir earned his PhD in mathematics in 2013 from Sidi Bel Abbès University, Algeria. In 2015, he received his highest diploma in Habilitation in mathematics from Constantine University, Algeria. He is currently assistant professor at Qassim University in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. His research interests lie in the subjects of nonlinear hyperbolic partial differential equations, global existence, blowup, and long time behavior.
