LISTENING TRANSCRIPT

Interviewer: Welcome everyone! To-day we are going to talk about the latest trend that has become very popular - Green Gyms, and with me to tell us a bit more about this is Joanna Smith who was involved in setting up a Green Gym. Welcome to the show Joanna.

Joanna: Thank you, I'm glad to be here.

Interviewer: So, this is something most people will be familiar with, it's the start of the year and we are full of enthusiasm to keep fit, so we join a gym. It usually starts off well, then 3 months later we wake up one morning and realise we haven't been to the gym for... well 2 months!

Joanna: (laughs)... yes, well that is a very common story.

Interviewer: But there is another option available that might just make us all want to go back to exercise and it's free.

Joanna: That's correct. You can join a green gym for free.

Interviewer: For those of us that don't know can you explain what a green gym is?

Joanna: It's one of a concept. Green gyms are a way for people to go out into the countryside, do some physical work helping the environment and at the same time improve their health.

Interviewer: So it combines keeping fit with protecting the environment?

Joanna: Yes.

Interviewer: That sounds ideal. How does a session at a green gym work?

Joanna: Well, when you get to the site the instructor takes you through some warm up exercises. This is to help reduce the risk of injuries.

Then you will be shown how to use the various tools and you will be told about the task. Types of tasks include tree replanting, repairing footpaths and growing vegetables. There is a large range of projects available.

Interviewer: Can children take part?
Joanna: Of course! We have lots of parents who bring their children along and it's turned out to be a great way for families to spend time together.

Interviewer: That sounds great. The trouble is trying to get the kids to come out. I have two teenagers and they spend most of their time in their rooms playing computer games. I can't see any two agreeing to swap their playstations for work tools.

Joanna: You'd be surprised, we have lots of teenagers here. At first they may not be willing to take part, but after a couple of sessions they start really enjoying it and making friends.

Interviewer: Why do you think these green gyms are becoming so popular?

Joanna: Many people find going to the gym boring because you're doing the same exercises over and over. Green gyms offer you the chance to do something different every time. You are out in the fresh air and, most importantly, you are doing something positive for the environment.

Interviewer: And what about the health benefits?

Joanna: There are so many participants in green gyms have reported improved mental and physical health. Working out in nature is thought to help relieve stress and fight depression.

Interviewer: If you're just joining us, I'm talking to Joanna Smith about Green Gyms...
