Memorandum Physical Science Paper Exemplar 2013:

The Secure and the Dispossessed Nick Buxton, Ben Hayes, 2015-11-20 While the world's scientists and many of its inhabitants despair at the impact of climate change corporate and military leaders see nothing but opportunities For them melting ice caps mean newly accessible fossil fuels borders to be secured from climate refugees social conflicts to be managed and more failed states in which to intervene They are securing their assets at the expense of the planet and its inhabitants The Secure and the Dispossessed looks at these deadly approaches with a critical eye It also considers the flip side that the legitimacy of the elite is under unprecedented pressure from resistance by communities to resource grabs to those creating new ecological and socially just models for managing our energy food and water Topics covered include geoengineering militarism refugee protection greenwashing and the agricultural crisis among others Adaptation and resilience to a climate changed world is desperately needed but the form it will take will affect all of our futures

Training Students to Extract Value from Big Data National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Mathematical Sciences and Their Applications, Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics, 2015-01-16 As the availability of high throughput data collection technologies such as information sensing mobile devices remote sensing internet log records and wireless sensor networks has grown science engineering and business have rapidly transitioned from striving to develop information from scant data to a situation in which the challenge is now that the amount of information exceeds a human's ability to examine let alone absorb it Data sets are increasingly complex and this potentially increases the problems associated with such concerns as missing information and other quality concerns data heterogeneity and differing data formats The nation's ability to make use of data depends heavily on the availability of a workforce that is properly trained and ready to tackle high need areas Training students to be capable in exploiting big data requires experience with statistical analysis machine learning and computational infrastructure that permits the real problems associated with massive data to be revealed and ultimately addressed Analysis of big data requires cross disciplinary skills including the ability to make modeling decisions while balancing trade offs between optimization and approximation all while being attentive to useful metrics and system robustness To develop those skills in students it is important to identify whom to teach that is the educational background experience and characteristics of a prospective data science student what to teach that is the technical and practical content that should be taught to the student and how to teach that is the structure and organization of a data science program Training Students to Extract Value from Big Data summarizes a workshop convened in April 2014 by the National Research Council's Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics to explore how best to train students to use big data The workshop explored the need for training and curricula and coursework that should be included One impetus for the workshop was the current fragmented view of what is meant by analysis of big data data analytics or data science New graduate programs are introduced regularly and they have their own notions of what is meant by those terms and most important of what students need to know to be proficient in data intensive work This report provides a variety of perspectives about those elements and about their integration into courses and curricula

Bulk Collection of Signals Intelligence National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Computer Science and Telecommunications Board, Committee on Responding to Section 5(d) of Presidential Policy Directive 28: The Feasibility of Software to Provide Alternatives to Bulk Signals Intelligence Collection, 2015-03-24 The Bulk Collection of Signals Intelligence Technical Options study is a result of an activity called for in Presidential Policy Directive 28 PPD 28 issued by President Obama in January 2014 to evaluate U S signals intelligence practices The directive instructed the Office of the Director of National Intelligence ODNI to produce a report within one year assessing the feasibility of creating software that would allow the intelligence community more easily to conduct targeted information acquisition rather than bulk collection ODNI asked the National Research Council NRC the operating arm of the National Academy of Sciences and National Academy of Engineering to conduct a study which began in June 2014 to assist in preparing a response to the President Over the ensuing months a committee of experts appointed by the Research Council produced the report Open Science by Design National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Policy and Global Affairs, Board on Research Data and Information, Committee on Toward an Open Science Enterprise, 2018-08-09 Openness and sharing of information are fundamental to the progress of science and to the effective functioning of the research enterprise The advent of scientific journals in the 17th century helped power the Scientific Revolution by allowing researchers to communicate across time and space using the technologies of that era to generate reliable knowledge more quickly and efficiently Harnessing today s stunning ongoing advances in information technologies the global research enterprise and its stakeholders are moving toward a new open science ecosystem Open science aims to ensure the free availability and usability of scholarly publications the data that result from scholarly research and the methodologies including code or algorithms that were used to generate those data Open Science by Design is aimed at overcoming barriers and moving toward open science as the default approach across the research enterprise This report explores specific examples of open science and discusses a range of challenges focusing on stakeholder perspectives It is meant to provide guidance to the research enterprise and its stakeholders as they build strategies for achieving open science and take the next steps

Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of the Academic Biomedical Research Community National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Health and Medicine Division, Institute for Laboratory Animal Research, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of Academic Research Communities, 2017-10-20 The academic biomedical research community is a hub of employment economic productivity and scientific progress Academic research institutions are drivers of economic development in their local and state economies and by extension the national economy Beyond the economic input that the academic biomedical research community both receives and provides it generates knowledge that in turn affects society in myriad ways The United States has experienced and continues to face the threat of disasters and like all entities the academic biomedical research community can be affected Recent disasters from hurricanes to cyber attacks and their consequences have shown that the investments of the federal government and of the many other entities that sponsor academic research are not uniformly secure First and foremost events that damage biomedical laboratories and the institutions that house them can have impacts on the safety and well being of humans and research animals Furthermore disasters can affect career trajectories scientific progress and financial stability at the individual and institutional levels Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of the Academic Biomedical Research Community offers recommendations and guidance to enhance the disaster resilience of the academic biomedical research community with a special focus on the potential actions researchers academic research institutions and research sponsors can take to mitigate the impact of future disasters
