The Problem of College Readiness William G. Tierney, Julia C. Duncheon, 2015-03-30 Examines how states schools and postsecondary institutions might best help improve college readiness and completion Though more students are entering college many drop out especially those who are low income and or of color To address this problem educational stakeholders have focused on the concept of college readiness or the preparation a student needs to succeed in college However what it means to be college ready and how to help more students become ready are questions without clear answers By way of historical and contemporary analyses this book uses California as a case study to demonstrate how the state has endeavored to make postsecondary opportunity accessible for all students The contributors also explore the challenges that remain and address what states and schools can do to improve college readiness and completion This book adds important information to the debates and discussions around this critical topic Caroline Sotello Viernes Turner coeditor of Understanding Minority Serving Institutions

Cross updates his critically acclaimed bestseller with new chapters and important new insights into future education policy. Cross draws on his own experience in Washington along with research and interviews to present a highly readable history of federal education policy from WWII to the Obama administration. The book highlights the key players who helped shape federal policy because as Cross writes in his introduction policy development is woven of personalities, events, and timing. This fascinating chronicle demonstrates among other things how federal policy has been a constant influence on what states and local districts do, especially with respect to students most at risk.

Mentoring in STEM Through a Female Identity Lens: Heroes Make a Difference for Women Cecilia (Ceal) D. Craig, 2024-09-24

With the stagnant low percentages of women in STEM careers, identifying practices to satisfy the growing need for professionals in those fields is critical to improve recruitment and retention. Supportive relationships like mentors and sponsors have been shown to both inspire women to pursue those careers and to help them succeed in them. This book explores how developing supportive connections helps students, faculty, and teachers see STEM professions as being a place for women to grow and succeed. Early chapters provide essential mentor characteristics and explore engineering education gender inequity from a teacher's perspective of stereotypes, stereotype threat, and bias, offering culturally relevant teacher mentoring approaches to promote equitable pre-college engineering education. Middle chapters describe K-12 mentoring programs, mentorship initiatives empowering young South African women and girls to advance to mathematical-related careers, programs, methods, and activities to achieve the desired goal of making young students aspire to become scientists, and engagement year-round in grades 9-12 combined with 40 years of iterative evaluation created a finely honed enrichment program for low-income Black women in urban public high schools. A longitudinal undergraduate mentoring program for mentoring early college students in Louisiana provides further insights in that section. The final four-chapter section describes mentoring programs for professors and teachers, reciprocal mentor relationships, and role shifting within an informal peer mentoring group, differences between mentoring relationships and sponsoring relationships within academia, the impact of culturally responsive mentorship, CRM on the development and expression of a pre-service teacher's woman of science identity, and a program that aims to recruit and retain STEM pre-service teachers and STEM teachers of color. With several longitudinal mentoring programs, several programs for women of color, this book fills a gap to help grow the numbers of women in STEM.
