Historiography in Saudi Arabia Jörg Matthias Determann, 2013-10-25 Saudi Arabia is generally and justifiably viewed as a country with some of the fewest democratic institutions and the weakest traditions of pluralism. It is therefore surprising to learn that at least in one corner of the Saudi world there can be found a plurality of opinions and lively debate. Jörg Matthias Determann brings this element to light by analysing an important field of cultural activity in Saudi Arabia: historical writing. Since the 1920s local tribal Shi'i and dynastic histories have contributed to a growing plurality of narratives. Paradoxically, this happened because of the expansion of the Saudi state including state provision of mass education. It was also due to globalizing processes such as the spread of the internet. In challenging the widely held perception of Saudi Arabia as an irredeemably closed and monolithic society, Historiography in Saudi Arabia provides a deeper understanding of modern Arab historiography, the Saudi state and education and scholarship in the Middle East.

Changing Images of Three Generations of Azharites in Indonesia Mona Abaza, 1993 The focus will be on three different generations of Indonesian scholars and Ulama who have studied in Cairo and in Al Azhar in particular. Three different periods will be discussed: the colonial times when Islamic Reformism had a great impact and reactivated scholarship in the Middle East and the world of Southeast Asia; the immediate post colonial period when Azharites played a paramount role in state functions; and the seventies and eighties when Islam was affirmed by the wealth of oil producing countries in the Arab Gulf.
