Hitler's concentration and extermination camps were liberated in 1944 and 1945 the horror of the atrocities came fully to light It was easy for others to imagine the joyful relief of freed prisoners yet for those who had survived the unimaginable the experience of liberation was a slow grueling journey back to life In this unprecedented inquiry into the days months and years following the arrival of Allied forces at the Nazi camps a foremost historian of the Holocaust draws on archival sources and especially on eyewitness testimonies to reveal the complex challenges liberated victims faced and the daunting tasks

their liberators undertook to help them reclaim their shattered lives Historian Dan Stone focuses on the survivors their feelings of guilt exhaustion fear shame for having survived and devastating grief for lost family members their immense medical problems and their later demands to be released from Displaced Persons camps and resettled in countries of their own choosing Stone also tracks the efforts of British American Canadian and Russian liberators as they contended with survivors immediate needs then grappled with longer term issues that shaped the postwar world and ushered in the first chill of the Cold War years ahead German Literary Culture at the Zero Hour Stephen Brockmann, 2009 The zero hour of the title was 1945 when Germany had to confront total devastation the crimes of Nazism the onset of the Cold War the division of the country It was a time of intense intellectual debate here reviewed through the mediums of literature literary discourse
