Accounting for Value in Marx's Capital Robert Bryer, 2017-09-07 Many scholars discuss Marx's Capital from many perspectives but Accounting for Value uniquely advances and defends an accounting interpretation of his theory of value that he used it to explain capitalists accounts It confirms and builds on the Temporal Single System Interpretation's refutation of the charge that Marx's illustration of the transformation from values to prices is inconsistent and its defense of his Law of the Tendency of the Rate of Profit It rejects other interpretations by showing that only a temporal single system interpretation is consistent with Marx's accounting The book shows that Marx became seriously interested in accounts from the late 1850s during an important period in the development of his critique of political economy asking Engels for information and explanations Examining their letters in the context of Marx's evolving work it argues supports the hypothesis that discovering he could explain them with his theory of value gave him the breakthrough he needed to decide how to present his work and explains why in 1862 he decided to change its title to Capital Marx's explanations of capitalist accounting it concludes amount to an accounting theory that explains how individual capitalists and the capital market use what is for many the invisible hand of accounting to control the production and distribution of surplus value Marx claimed his theory of value was a work of science a critique of political economy that would deliver a theoretical blow from which the bourgeoisie would never recover He failed critics argue because his critique depends on hypothetical entities which we cannot directly observe such as value and abstract labour surplus value which means his theory is not open to empirical refutation The book however argues that he used his theory of value to explain the phenomenal forms of profit rate of profit etc by explaining the observable accounting principles and practices capitalists use to calculate and control them in which as he said we can glimpse the determination of value by socially necessary labor time which experience could have refuted

Finance for Purchasing Managers Richard France, 2016-04-15. Managers involved at a senior level in the purchasing function require very particular financial skills. They need to analyse the financial health and stability of their suppliers, model different cost and price scenarios, understand and manage budgets and be comfortable with the financial aspects of capital purchases. Finance for Purchasing Managers is written from this perspective using buyer's language and interpretation. Richard France explores four key areas of expertise required of a buyer in today's environment: Financial analysis of suppliers (this includes understanding the financial aspects of a buyer's own organisation plus analysing key suppliers and how to use information to gain a negotiating edge); Pricing, costing and cost modelling (including costing methods and their application and how an understanding of these can give buyers a greater understanding when dealing with supplier quotations); Managing resources (including budgeting and sources of finance). This shows how budgets are drawn up and the importance of understanding the implications of the buyer's decisions on a supplier's cash flow forecast. Finally, capital and revenue purchasing decisions and techniques covering standard investment appraisal techniques and how these can be used for deciding on the best deal from a choice of suppliers for both capital items as well as a standard long term parts supply contract. Finance for Purchasing Managers may be used to support the CIPS Level 6 Course Finance for Purchasers but also offers a readable and practical guide for those at a senior level in purchasing whether in the public or private sector.

Activity-Based Costing for Marketing and Manufacturing Ronald Lewis, 1993-05-30. The declining domination of American manufacturers in world class markets has resulted in widespread criticism of traditional costing methods. Activity based accounting for manufacturing costs emerged in the 1980s to satisfy the changes taking place in production methods and techniques such as Just in Time, Inventory Control and Flexible Manufacturing Systems. Although activity based costing methods may be new in manufacturing processes, they have been advocated and applied by marketing managers since the late 1960s according to Professor Lewis. The accounting profession has finally recognized the advantages of activity based
