Human Development Report 2007/2008 United Nations Development Programme,2007-11-15 Human development is about putting people at the center of development It is about people realizing their potential increasing choice and enjoying the freedom to lead the lives they value Created in 1990 the Human Development Report has explored themes including gender equity democracy human rights globalization cultural liberty and water scarcity The past years have witnessed the emergence of a growing consensus on climate change Governments across the world have seen the warning signs The science linking global warming to human activity is unequivocal The economic case for action is compelling the costs of inaction will heavily outweigh the costs of action Yet the politics lags behind the science and the economics Collectively the world's governments are failing to act with the urgency demanded by the scale of the threat The window of opportunity for avoiding dangerous climate change is closing fast This year's Human Development Report explains why we have less than a decade to change course and start living within our global carbon budget It explains how climate change will create long run low human development traps pushing vulnerable people into a downward spiral of deprivation Because climate change is a global problem with global causes and effects it demands a global response with countries acting on the basis of their historic responsibility and capabilities The Asia-Pacific Human Development Report, 2010

FDI in Tourism United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2007 Many developing countries are looking to tourism as a potentially promising avenue for economic and human development This is a relatively new position for some countries and reflects the rapid increase in tourism in terms of both numbers of arrivals and revenues for several economies in recent years FDI is one of the routes through which developing countries can carry out tourism but the dynamics of FDI in this dynamic sector and its implications have been relatively little studied A significant part of tourism's development potential stems from the fact that it links together a series of cross cutting activities involving the provision of goods and services such as accommodation transport entertainment construction and agricultural and fisheries production On the other hand tourism is a sensitive sector that is vulnerable to external shocks economic environmental and political as well as potentially creating problems of its own Contrary to common perceptions one finding of this study is that FDI in tourism is relatively low compared to other globalized activities including services such as telecommunications or finance and compared to domestic investment FDI exists in only a small number of the many diverse activities that comprise what could be called the international tourism economy The main investments are in hotels and restaurants with little FDI in airlines although this is growing and in high profile and important activities such as tour operations or global reservation systems Tourism related FDI is also largely concentrated in developed countries
