National Freshman Attitudes Report, 2012. An Exploration of Attitudes That Influence Student Success.

Seventh Annual National Research Study Noel-Levitz, Inc, 2012 This annual report describes self reported attitudes and motivations of today's first year college students throughout the nation based on survey responses from a sizable sample of freshmen attending college during the current academic year 2011-2012 Among the highlights 1 Compared to their female counterparts many more incoming first year males brought attitudes that reflected a low level of academic engagement with fewer males than females indicating that they enjoy reading take careful notes and are receptive to academic assistance 2 In a finding that appears to demonstrate the value of higher education at cultivating tolerance toward others a substantially higher percentage of students at the mid point of their freshman year compared to the beginning of their freshman year agreed with the statement I get along well with people who disagree with my opinion openly and 3 Incoming Hispanic freshmen and incoming adult freshmen also appeared to be more tolerant of others opinions as 64 percent of incoming first year Hispanic students and 72 percent of incoming adult freshmen agreed with the statement I can feel comfortable with someone who thinks quite differently on major social issues These percentages were higher than those of other racial ethnic groups and higher than those of traditional age learners Appended are 1 Reflections and actions to consider and 2 Additional findings Contains 4 footnotes For related report Addendum by Race Ethnicity National Freshman Attitudes Report 2012 National Research Study see ED536690 National Freshman Attitudes Report, 2011. Special Focus Noel-Levitz, Inc, 2011 This report describes self reported attitudes and motivations of first year college students nationally at the beginning of the undergraduate experience based on a 100 item motivational assessment administered in the summer and fall of 2010 Highlighted this year are attitudes that may limit academic engagement suggesting the need for educational interventions For context references to earlier Noel Levitz National Freshman Attitude Reports are included along with a detailed appendix Among the highlights 1 More than 44 percent of incoming freshmen nationally agreed with the statement Math has always been a challenge for me with even higher percentages agreeing among first generation freshmen 48 percent and adult nontraditional age freshmen 53 percent 2 Only 63 percent of incoming freshmen agreed with the statement I am capable of writing a very clear and well organized paper a percentage that was lower among students at two year public and private institutions 55 percent than at four year public and private institutions 65-67 percent 3 Male freshmen especially acknowledged their irregular study habits and a limited enjoyment of books and reading along with uncertainty about the value of their college education and 4 Reflecting the uncertain economy nearly one third of incoming freshmen 31 percent and even more first generation freshmen 40 percent arrived on campuses last fall indicating they had very distracting and troublesome financial problems Appended are 1 Some conclusions and suggestions from Noel Levitz regarding the findings and 2 Additional findings and data from fall 2010 Contains 5 tables and 2 footnotes For related report Addendum by Race

Ethnicity National Freshman Attitudes Report 2011 National Research Study see ED536420      National Freshman Attitudes Report USA Group Noel-Levitz, Iowa City, IA.,2006 When they arrive at college most of today s first year students bring with them a strong desire to complete their education yet many are also bringing serious doubts about their ability to afford it and the adequacy of their academic preparation These findings are among the highlights of this new report on the attitudes of American first year students at the beginning of their college experience Also among the highlights almost half to two thirds of these students would like right from the start to receive help in areas such as career guidance and improving math skills This new national study reveals that today s entering undergraduates are arriving on campuses highly motivated to complete their college degrees Yet at the same time many are bringing with them serious doubts about the adequacy of their academic preparation and their ability to afford college costs This mixture of sentiments is perhaps not surprisingly also accompanied by students strong interest in receiving immediate assistance from their college including help with preparing for college exams career guidance math tutoring and assistance with securing loans and part time jobs      National Freshman Attitudes Report, 2009. Special Focus Noel-Levitz, Inc,2009 This report describes the self reported attitudes and motivations of first year college students nationally at the beginning of their undergraduate experience based on a 100 item attitudinal survey administered in the summer and fall of 2008 In particular the report examines student attitudes that may pose barriers and opportunities for students as they begin their pursuit of an academic degree Highlighted in this year s report are findings that described students financial anxiety Among these were the following 1 Less than half of entering undergraduates nationwide 46 4 percent reported that they had adequate financial resources to finish college 2 Approximately one third of all respondents 29 3 percent reported that they had financial challenges that were very distracting and troublesome and 3 First generation students brought higher levels of financial stress than non first generation students and students at two year institutions brought higher levels of financial anxiety than their counterparts at four year institutions Contains 3 footnotes For the Addendum by Race Ethnicity 2009 National Freshman Attitudes Report National Research Study see ED541565      Addendum by Race Noel-Levitz, Inc,2012 Included in this addendum are the findings for the Noel Levitz 2012 National Freshman Attitudes Report by race ethnicity for incoming students These data show the percentage of students within each group that agreed with each item Also included in this paper are the demographic breakdown of the respondents and a brief explanation of the statistical processes used to produce these data For the full report National Freshman Attitudes Report 2012 An Exploration of Attitudes that Influence Student Success Seventh Annual National Research Study see ED536691      National Freshman Attitudes Report, 2010. Special Focus Noel-Levitz, Inc,2010 This report describes the self reported attitudes and motivations of first year students nationally at the beginning of the undergraduate experience based on a 100 item motivational assessment administered in the summer and fall of 2009 In particular the report examines attitudes that may have posed barriers and opportunities for students as they began their pursuit of an academic degree For context data collected from students who entered college in fall 2008 and fall 2007 are also included Highlighted in this year's report are changes in attitudes in light of the uncertain economy Among the highlights 1 Entering students' determination to finish college did not appear to be dampened by the economic environment as nearly 95 percent of last fall's new undergraduates reported they were highly motivated to complete a degree consistent with previous years' findings However more students were pursuing only a two-year degree corresponding with the increased enrollments at two-year institutions nationally 2 A growing proportion of entering students 31 percent in fall 2009 reported they had financial challenges that were very distracting and troublesome 3 More than half of entering students remained receptive to a wide variety of forms of assistance ranging from career counseling to help with improving study habits to help with finding a part-time job and 4 In general females are aspiring to complete higher degrees than males a continuing trend In addition many more female students in comparison to males continued to bring attitudes that signaled greater academic engagement Appended are 1 Additional findings on the attitudes measured and 2 About Noel Levitz and the survey instrument used in this study Contains 2 footnotes For related report Addendum by Race Ethnicity 2010 National Freshman Attitudes Report National Research Study see ED541568 Addendum by Race Noel-Levitz, Inc, 2011 Included in this addendum are the findings for the Noel Levitz 2011 National Freshman Attitudes Report by race ethnicity for incoming students These data show the percentage of students within each group that agreed with each item Demographic breakdown of the respondents is presented on pages 7 and 8 For related report National Freshman Attitudes Report 2011 Special Focus Attitudes That May Limit Academic Engagement Sixth Annual National Research Study see ED536415 2010 Freshman Attitudes at Two-Year Colleges Noel-Levitz, Inc, 2010 This supplemental report expands on the findings of the 2010 National Freshman Attitudes Report from Noel Levitz by examining the wide-ranging attitudes and motivations of incoming first-year students at two-year community junior career and technical colleges Specifically this report contrasts the attitudes of 1 Adult versus traditional age students at two-year colleges 2 First generation versus non first generation students at two-year colleges and 3 Male versus female students at two-year colleges The substantial differences in attitudes shown on the tables in this report speak to the distinctive missions of two-year colleges and underscore the importance of adapting student advisement instruction orientation and other services to fit the varied needs of the student populations served Appended are 1 Additional findings and data from fall 2009 and 2 About Noel Levitz and the survey instrument used in this study Contains 4 tables For related report National Freshman Attitudes Report 2010 Special Focus Exploring the Influence of the Economy Fifth Annual National Research Study see ED541563 Addendum by Race Noel-Levitz, Inc, 2010 Included in this addendum are the findings for the Noel Levitz 2010 National Freshman Attitudes Report by race ethnicity for incoming students These data show the percentage of students within each group that agreed with each item This paper provides a detailed explanation of the statistical processes used to produce these data as well as a demographic breakdown of the
