Derian, Alexander Wendt, 2022 The contributors to this volume are motivated by a common apprehension and a common hope The apprehension was first voiced by Einstein who lamented the inability of humanity at the individual and social level to keep up with the increased speed of technological change brought about by the quantum revolution As quantum science and technology fast forward into the 21st century the social sciences remain stuck in classical 19th century ways of thinking Can such a mechanistic model of the mind and society possibly help us manage the fully realized technological potential of the quantum That's where the hope appears that perhaps quantum is not just a physical science but a human science too In Quantum International Relations James Der Derian and Alexander Wendt gather rising scholars and leading experts to make the case for quantum approaches to world politics As a fundamental theory of reality and enabler of new technologies quantum now touches everything with the potential to revolutionize how we conduct diplomacy wage war and make wealth Contributors present the core principles of quantum mechanics entanglement uncertainty superposition and the wave function as significant catalysts and superior heuristics for an accelerating quantum future Facing a reality which no longer corresponds to an outdated Newtonian worldview of states as billiard balls individuals as rational actors or power as Lucretius poem On the Nature of Things combines a scientific and philosophical treatise with some of the greatest poetry ever written. With intense moral fervour he demonstrates to humanity that in death there is nothing to fear since the soul is mortal and the world and everything in it is governed by the mechanical laws of nature and not by gods and that by believing this men can live in peace of mind and happiness. He bases this on the atomic theory expounded by the Greek philosopher Epicurus and continues with an examination of sensation, sex, cosmology, meteorology and geology; all of these subjects made more attractive by the poetry with which he illustrates them.

Aetna and the Moon Liba Chaia Taub, 2008

Classical authors used both prose and poetry to explore and explain the natural world. In Aetna and the Moon Liba Taub examines the variety of ways in which ancient Greeks and Romans conveyed scientific information. In ancient Greece and Rome most of the technical literature on scientific, mathematical, technological and medical subjects was written in prose as it is today. However, Greek and Roman poets produced a significant number of widely read poems that dealt with scientific topics. Why would an author choose poetry to explain the natural world? This question is complicated by claims made since antiquity that the growth of rational explanation involved the abandonment of poetry and the rejection of myth in favor of science. Taub uses two texts to explore how scientific ideas were disseminated in the ancient world. The anonymous author of the Latin Aetna poem explained the science behind the volcano Etna with poetry. The Greek author Plutarch juxtaposed scientific and mythic explanations in his dialogue On the Face on the Moon. Both texts provide a lens through which Taub considers the nature of scientific communication in ancient Greece and Rome. From publisher's description.

Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him.
